Round the Table Then and Now

by Maria Froehle

In a mythical place called Camelot, King Arthur was the king and Guinevere, his queen. From this, the philosophy of Justice and Chivalry originated.

But, did Camelot really exist? Whether or not it did in the past, it exists now in our literature, cinema, and music. Tennyson and Malory both explored the mystical realm of ancient Camelot. The cinema has presented its version through the movies "Excaliber" and "Camelot." "Camelot," was loosely based upon the stage play, "Camelot." Since its first showing in 1960, "Camelot" has been a theater favorite. Songs, including "If Ever I Would Leave You," "How To Handle A Woman," and "Camelot" are still popular today.

The round table ruled over Arthur's Camelot much as our Round Table rules over SMHS' Camelot. As Arthur ruled over his knights, Mark Nichols rules over his. As the head of the ASB, he helps to ensure justice in his dominion. He has help from Vice President Matt Cooper, Secretary Mary Brooks, and Treasurer Jeff Cranney. All 1800 members of the Associated Student Body that attend SMHS help them.

For some, the first day of school is eagerly awaited. For others, it is a day to be avoided like few other days.

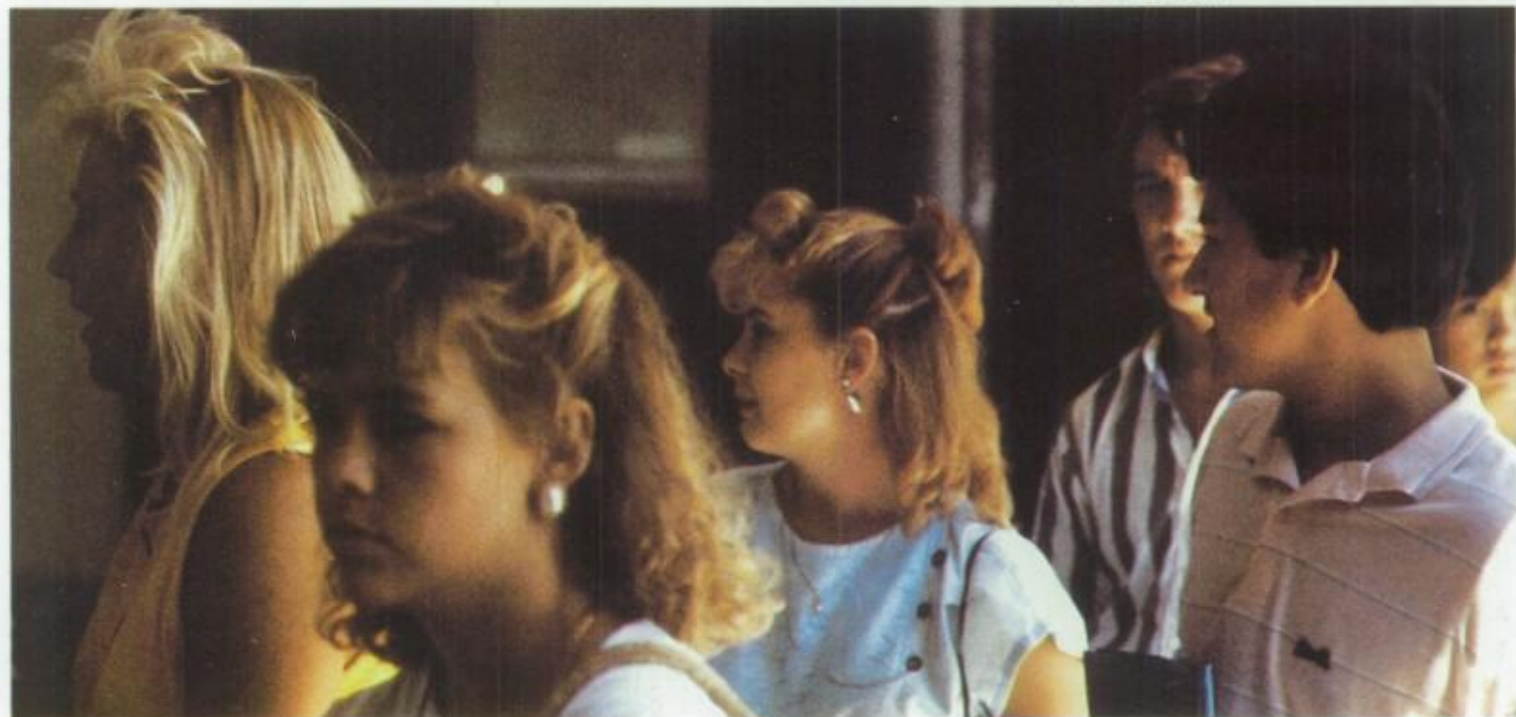

A percentage of students find that the summer days begin to pale and become boring. They do the same things, go to the same places and see the same people for months. For them, September 8 brings new challenges and excitement. Old friendships can be renewed and new friends found. "I love to see all of my old friends with their great tans and new clothes," said Sarah Dulin.

But most students see

September 8 as the day their parole runs out. It is a day that ends summer fun and their reprieve from the drudgery of school. They dread the five a.m. ring of the alarm that signifies the beginning of their nine-month sentence. That brings the 180-school-day-year to a beginning.

Both attitudes were represented this year on campus. But, no matter which side of the fence a student was on, the alarm did ring, and September 8 did come around. Better luck next year! Maybe the alarm clock won't ring and school will not start. Good Luck!

1. Portable Learning — Six new portables were added to the school. This enabled some teachers to have their own rooms for the first time. 2. Look This Way — Substitutes are a way of life for students. 3. A Line A Day — The counselors were inundated with students for the first few weeks of school. About one fourth of the students wanted to change something on their schedules. 4. Giving A Hand — The Art Club celebrated the beginning of the year with their annual Tie Dye party. It has been a tradition for seven years. 5. Pass It Over Here — For a day, nose passing became a sport. Every pep assembly has a game that students play. 6. A Month Of Chaos — In September it was much more important where you were, rather than who you were. Parking became an art and everyone played.

Stairs Sign Of Taste?

by Brian Kohls

Hangouts have become more and more noticeable throughout the past few years. It is almost to the point where one can tell a person's personality by where they hang out.

Senior Michalina Miller thinks that Valley Parkway in Escondido is the place where people like to spend their free time on weekends. The fast food drive-through lines fill up and the students congregate in parking lots. "On the weekends a lot of people like to cruise Valley," she said.

On the other hand, some prefer hangouts that are at school. Everyone has at least one place where they like to spend time. Senior Maria Froehle said, "I like to hang out in Mrs. Clark's room and give her a bad time." Teachers' rooms, the planters, the senior lawn and the quad are all popular places.

What is closest to a student's heart? That's right — food! During and after school people are always hungry. As a result the fast food joints in town do a great business. "Most people after the football games like to hang out at Lampost Pizza," said junior Jerry Kriebel. Rossi's also collects its fare share of football game goers.

Hangouts can be inside school or outside. Everyone has one place or another where they feel comfortable. Where people spend time can show their personality as well as their taste.

1. Two of Many — Students found it fun and entertaining to work at the Olde English Faire in October. Many students also found the time to stop by and look in. 2. Slip Another Shrimp On The Barbie — this expression was heard floating around campus. Barbeques became the rage this year. 3. Clueless — Rick Ebert practices for Nerd Day. Some, like he and Matt Cooper were so involved that they didn't have time to hang out. 4. Cheerleaders — are only one faction of SMHS that picniced. Fridays became senior lunch box days, with lots of seniors participating.

1. To Mecca — or our version of rush hour traffic. The new stoplight enabled both walking and driving students to get to school safely. 2. It's Morning — For some, before school is the best time to do homework. Others spent the time socializing or sleeping. 3. Go K-knights — The gym echoed the voices of students and teachers alike during the school year. Morning pep assemblies were popular for everyone. 4. Eat It — Eating is another popular morning pastime. Students both buy and bring their own food and can be seen eating in and out of class. 5. Money, Money — For the first time the administration allowed the sale of donuts to students in the morning. This fundraiser gave students a chance to a breakfast many didn't get last year.

As people on the other side of the world are crawling into a nice, warm, comfortable bed after a hard day at work, people here at SMHS are trying to drag themselves out of bed.

Waking up in the morning has also been known as something that people do not want to do, but they all know it has to be done.

"Waking up in the morning is like cleaning the bathroom — you don't want to do it, but it's got to be done," sophomore Dan Trumpis explained.

This year, with the new zero period, there were many students at school and in class before the sun even comes up.

"Since taking the zero period, I've come to love and cherish my sleep, as little as I get," said junior Erik Nielsen. "Waking up takes all the fun out of sleeping."

Yes, waking up early seems to be very difficult for everyone, but, as freshman Tom Calac said, "Knights that we are — we'll fight through to see the sun."

Send Money Not Love

by Marisa Testa

One of the big advantages, or disadvantages, depending on how you look at it, of growing up is that sooner or later you have to get a job. San Marcos High School students are employed in a variety of jobs ranging from medical assistants to accompanist on the piano and from florist shop clerks to babysitters. When asked what they spend their money on, the students' answers were as diversified as their respective jobs.

Sophomore John Lakey spends his hard-earned bucks on "my computer, my car, and me," while senior Beth Hatten blows her earnings on "birthday presents and clothes."

There are, of course, many advantages to having a job, and SMHS students were eager to tell what they enjoyed most about their jobs.

Junior Ashley Reynolds, who does secretarial work in her family business, says, "I like the fact that the skills I'm using right now I can also use in any type of work area. It gives me something to fall back on."

"I get money the old fashioned way, I beg for it!" John Lakey

It follows that there are somethings that people dislike about their jobs, and students were equally as eager to voice their pet peeves.

"It gets tiring after a while and when my friends want to do something, I can't," said junior Carissa Cline.

To senior Becky Eckberg, work is something that "takes up my time when I could be doing something more enriching."

Work is something that everyone has to do sooner or later. It can be fun, frustrating, or just plain boring, but the money earned is something everyone appreciates, even if it's spent on "toys and books in languages I can't read," as junior Michael Doscher is fond of doing.

Money — Who has enough? To most students spending it is a past time. And what do they spend it on? Cars, food and hobbies.

Photos: Mike Kreutz and Chris Jor

1. "Get Me a Coke," said Lisa Zeiler. The soda machines make a tidy profit for the ASB each month. 2. Earning It — Richard Taylor works at the Quail's Inn for funds. Many students take jobs while in school for spending money. 3. Spending It — ASB Bookkeeper Mary Schoneman sees every cent made by the clubs on campus. The funds of every organization on campus end up on her desk at one time or another.

More Than A Pretty Face

Ty The 4th Period Journalism Class

he many students that roam the halls of San Marcos High are the faces that produce the personality of the school. What do the students think of their school? "SMHS has a friendly and spirited personality," said sophomore Janelle Monett, "because the atmosphere is so refreshing and everyone is always smiling."

"It's a caring school," said junior Shannon James. "Parents and students are more involved." Lately, San Marcos is big on caring. The school has become involved in getting help for students who are addicted to drugs. San Marcos cared about the students and their welfare.

San Marcos's students seem to feel a great deal of genuine spirit for their school. This is very important for the school's atmosphere, as well as the students' feelings towards their school.

Sayonara Seniors

W by Maria Froehle

hat is a senior? A senior is someone who has suffered 12 years of schooling and has to face four more years returning to a freshman again.

A senior is a 17-year-old who has to face getting a job and working for the rest of his life. "Don't tell us that!" yelled senior Ken Imaizumi when faced with this future.

Usually seniors have found their niche, but they have only a few short weeks to enjoy it. They know everyone — teachers and students alike. Seniors have their own lawn and spend a majority of their time looking toward the future. But then, their idyllic time is ruined. Senioritis. It happens!

For many, the senior year is a time to shine. Most positions with authority are occupied by 12th-graders. These positions include club offices, spirit group leaders, and student leaders. There are even some classes that are predominantly made up of seniors — genetics, physics, calculus, critical thought, and honors English 12, for example.

The senior year is often the most confusing and the most exciting year for students. "It's the time when one tries to remember what he had planned in his earlier years in high school, and then goes crazy when he finds out that there is still a lot to be done to reach that goal and only nine months to do it in," commented senior Steve Condrey. It is the year that they carry with them, no matter what their futures hold.

Homecoming Week, October 20-24, consisted of five dress up days — Kiddie Day, Toga Day, Beach Day, Nerd Day, and Blue and White Day. The festivities ended with the Homecoming football game, at which the homecoming royalty was announced.

Spirit Week was something different for everyone. All students, participants or not, have fond memories and their own opinions. "Spirit Week was a time when the most dignified person can make a fool of himself," said sophomore Dan Trumpis.

"Homecoming Week was fun and out of the ordinary. It kind of took some of us out of a rut," said sophomore Colby Sherwood.

"Participating in the activities during Homecoming Week was a way to bring all students together by showing school spirit and pride," said junior Jenny Johnson.

But Spirit Week was not considered a huge success, by some. However sophomore LeRhonda Tanker seemed to have the best attitude. "A lot of kids said we were not spirited because people didn't dress up on a lot of the days. The day most people dressed up on was Blue and White day. If that is not showing spirit, what is?"

Knights on Parade

Welcome to San Marcos High School's 25th Annual Homecoming celebration. This is a Knight Time Fantasy. A night of excitement, happiness and dreams come true.

From the land of frosh, Prince Jason Coulter and Princess Shanelle Cranney bring the gift of spirit. If she could have one wish, she would want a clone to do her homework. Jason's wish is to have his own private beach resort.

The duke and duchess of the sophomore manor are Duke Eric Fridell and Duchess Laura Ingram. They bring the gift of sincerity. Laura hopes someday to become a child psychologist.

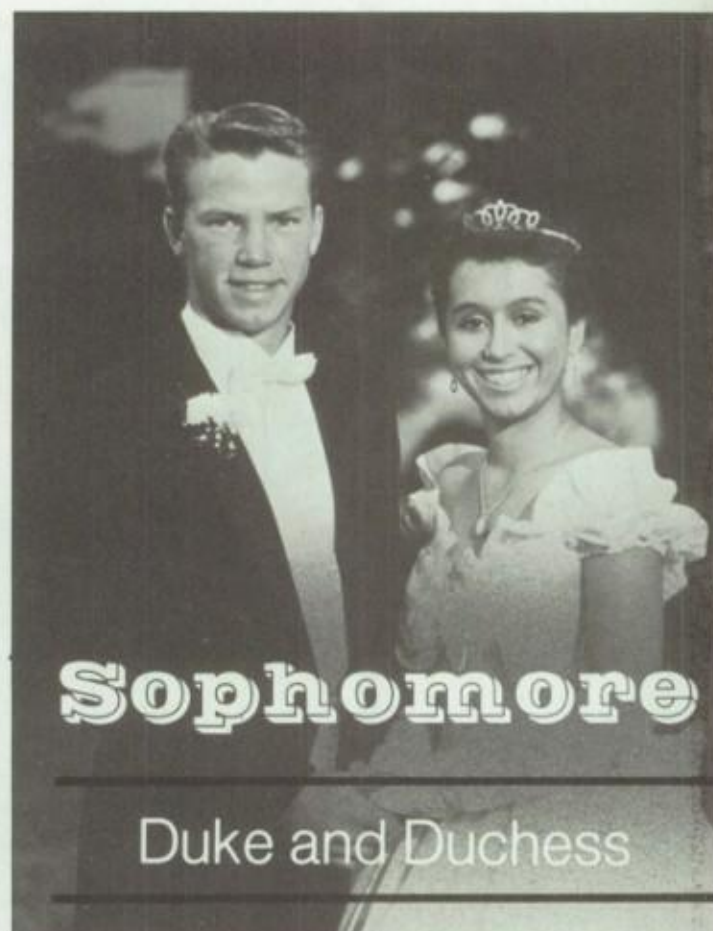

Nobles from the junior estate bring the gift of joy. They are Count Matt Cooper and Countess Susana Navarro. Susana plans to attend the University of San Diego and major in education. Matt's wish is to have all women idolize him for his mind.

From the senior realm of Knightland come three lords and their ladies presenting the gift of loyalty. First are Lord Danny Karrer and Lady Shelly Anguiano. Next are Lord Mark Nichols and Lady Sharleen Shaughnessy.

Finally we have King Scott Masters and Queen Tracey O'Rourke. Tracey's interests include shopping, traveling, sports, and trying to find her potential. She was sophomore class princess. She was named the most valuable in track and made first team Avocado League in soccer for two years in a row. Tracey plans to pass geometry, attend college and win the million dollar lottery.

Scott Masters has been active in football for three years. He played soccer and basketball for one year. He is currently a member of that exciting performing unit — the flag boys. He is in his fourth year as a student congress member and is currently a pep commissioner. His interests include surfing, skiing, skateboarding, and spending time at the beach with his friends. Scott is planning to attend UCSB and major in business.

Dance with me

by Brian Kohls

his year SMHS students boogied until they couldn't boogie any more. Starting the year off, the seniors sponsored the Welcome Back Dance on Sept. 27. The purpose was to welcome everyone back from the summer vacation and to welcome the new freshman class. The dance made the senior class $900 richer. The money went towards the senior breakfast held in June.

The Homecoming Dance was the second dance of the year. Sponsored by the junior class, it was held on Nov. 18, the night after the Homecoming game. The dance was a hit and everyone had a blast.

The sophomore class finally had their chance to impress SMHS. They sponsored the Christmas Dance on Dec. 6. After Dark was the host and the sophomore class made $800.

The junior class had another shot at it by sponsoring their annual Junior-Senior prom. It was held at the NCO club at Camp Pendleton on May 30.

Finally, the last dance of the year — "The Yearbook Dance." This dance was put on by the yearbook staff on June 12. This was one of the best dances of the year because it gave everybody a chance to sign yearbooks and watch the yearly slide show.

This year's spring production was "The Music Man," written by Meredith Willson.

Frank Hankin and Jason Schulz double-played the lead role of Professor Harold Hill. Kim Ryan played the character of Marian Paroo.

The play was an effort from not only SMHS students but staff members, elementary school children and parents. The cast felt the younger kids added a lot to the production: "The kids learned things so fast! It really kept us older kids on our toes!" said one cast member.

"Opening night was very special," said drama teacher Janine Totta. A chicken dinner was offered before the performance. Servers were dressed in costume to give the occasion a country air. "The dinner really added atmosphere and readied the audience to travel back to 1912," she said.

Fund raisers such as a carwash and "Music Man" videotapes made the performance a success.

Spirit Fun

By Heather Rowell and Nancy Davis

he Flag Boys, in their cute pink skirts, parodied the Short Flags. They used current popular music with their own particular brand of flag twirling and aerobics.

Barbara Dolan, their captive advisor, thought the group was much better than in the past. The group was started in 1978 by Billy Singh — then a student, now a teacher — and caught on because they were funny (and still are). They participated in pep assemblies and the Bob Uecker Show.

The participants included captain Jim Jennings and co-captain Rick Ebert, as well as the rest of the team. Their entertaining routines were rewarded by the laughter of the crowd as they mockingly imitated the spirit groups.

Junior varsity cheerleaders performed at JV sporting events and pep assemblies. "The individual personalities are different, but they all work and perform well," said their advisor, Ron Layton. "I enjoy working with students in all activities."

Captain Jennifer Medlyn said that the team has accomplished a great deal this year and has given the team members experiences that they will remember for the rest of their lives. "I feel it has been a rewarding experience and has taught me a lot. I joined because it's fun and will help me in the coming years," she said.

A New Spirit

by Ken Imaizumi

here is a first time for everything or the saying goes. Well, this year SMHS Varsity Cheer squad started competing under the combined leadership of adviser Linda Weston, captain Rima Salman, and co-captain Shelia Gorton. The squad competed at the National Cheerleading Association competition in November where they placed second. In addition to competing, they were featured in a segment of the popular television show, "San Diego at Large," hosted by Larry Himmel.

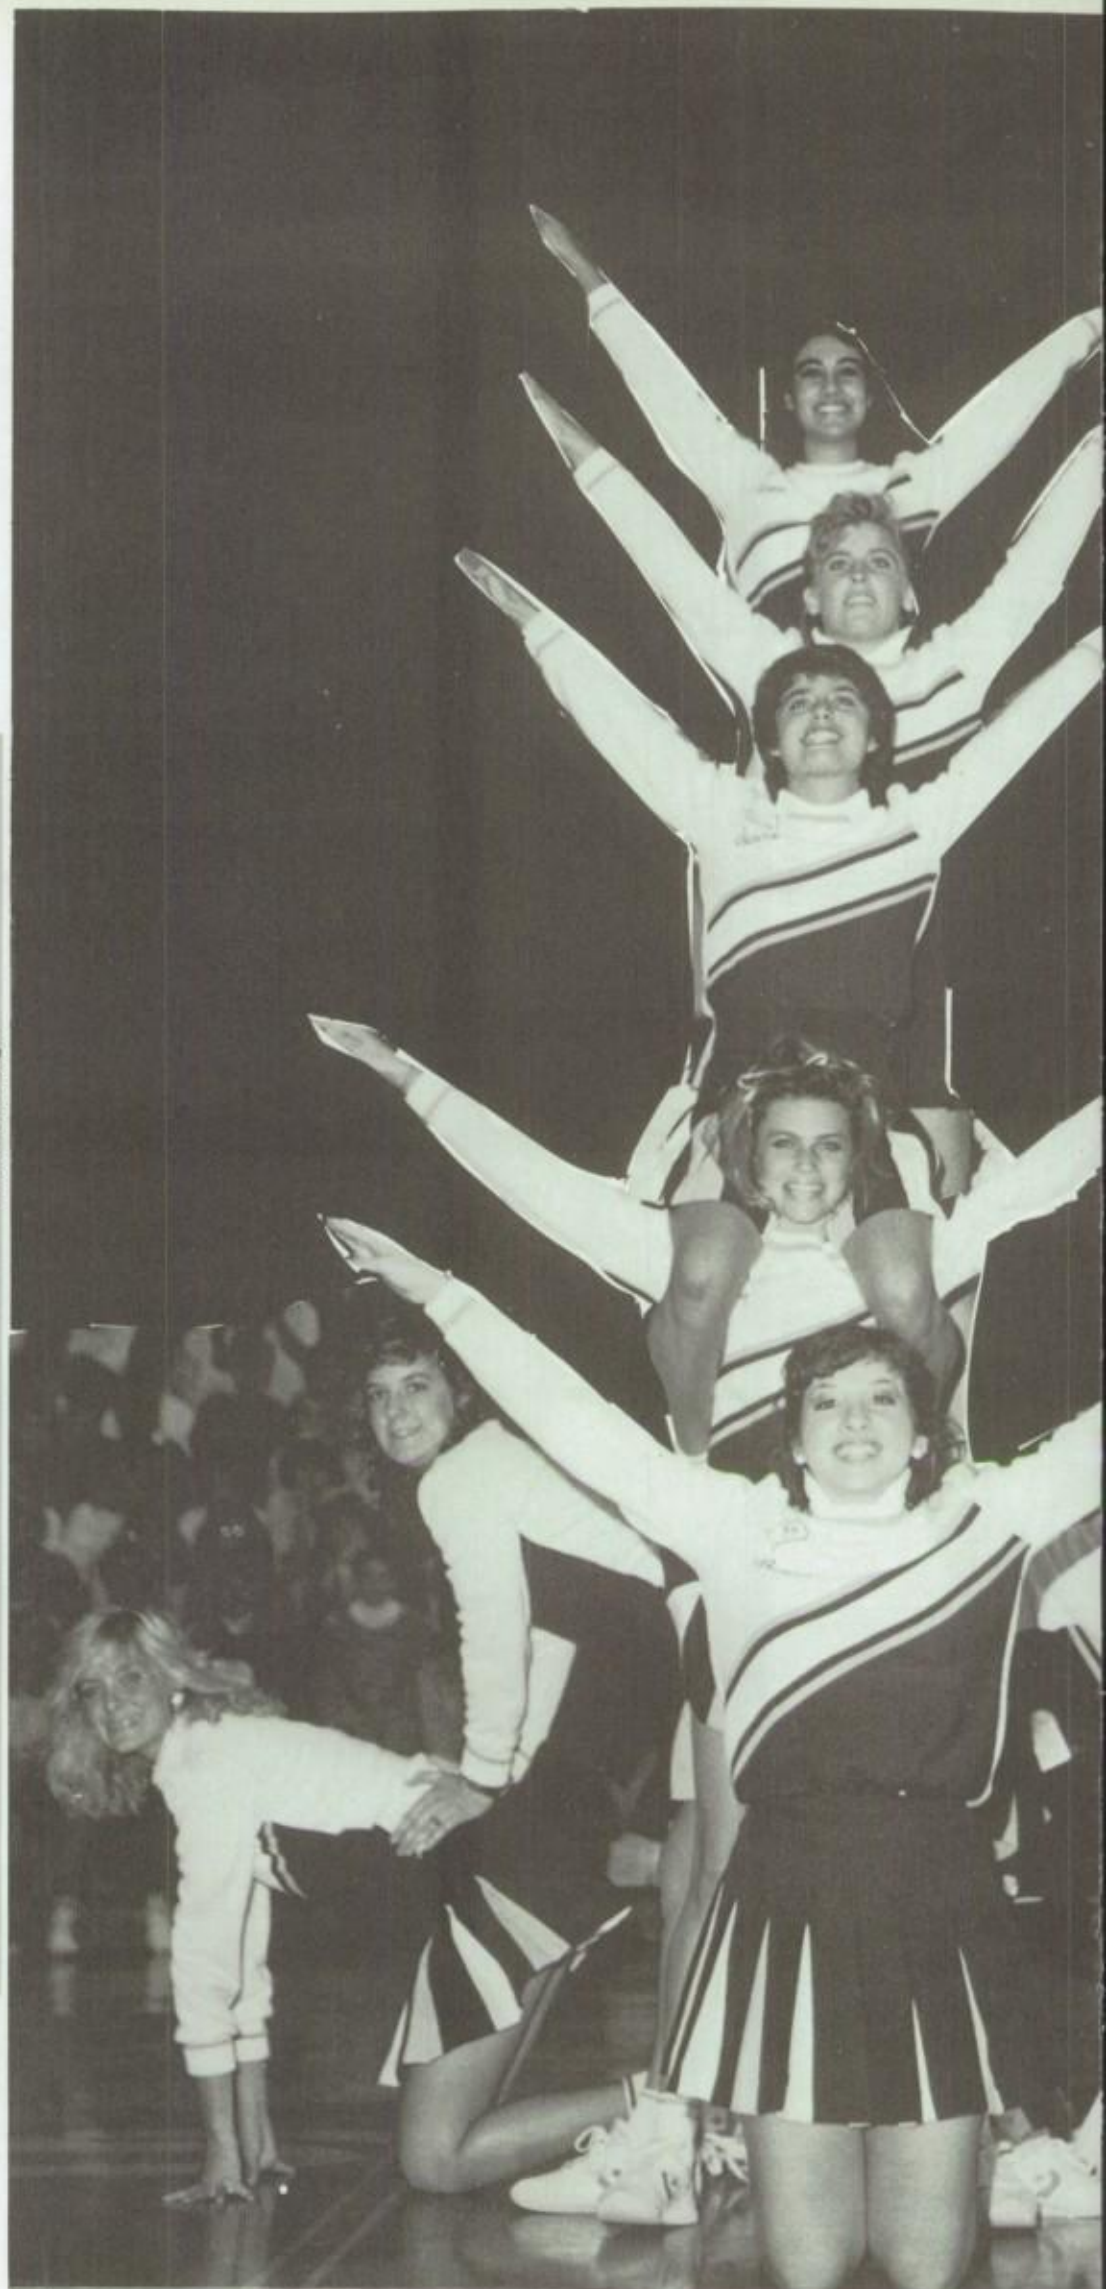

Not only was there a change in what the team did, but there was a change in the way it was done. "Cheerleading is a great sport, that is not necessarily composed of flakey, bubble-headed blondes. I want to help change this image," said Mrs. Weston. To achieve this, Rima worked on details and Sheila worked on techniques. They've laid down the foundations for years to come.

These are frequent occurrences to the songleaders. But this year there was a difference — eight of the ten girls were new and had to work hard to achieve the excellence of last year's experienced team.

The girls took advisor Barbara Dolan's lead to accomplish new and original dances and competitions different from last year. She thinks it helps her to stay school-spirited, as do the members of the team. They showcased their routines during football games, pep assemblies, and assorted sports games and during a few competitions during festival season.

Their student leaders were Laura Olson and Kori Beasley, who were the only returning members. "They are both creative and good performers," said Mrs. Dolan. "Laura is very patient and gives everything to song."

Laura is also very enthusiastic about being a leader but thinks that it is very different from just being a member. "I get to know everything first-hand and I know a lot of things they don't. It's a big responsibility but I enjoy it."

Laura and Kori regret having to leave, but they feel confident about the team's ability next year to carry on.

his year as in past years, pep assemblies were used to get students "fired up." "All the pep assemblies this year were a success with lots of students coming out to show their school spirit," said Leela Lutchmansighn, assemblies commissioner.

In her job, Leela organized all the assemblies. She made sure that the performing groups knew what time they were supposed to go on, and how much time they could have. She was also in charge of the special assemblies. Those were the assemblies that were strictly entertainment, like the Air Aces Frisbee Team and Dr. Dean.

The assemblies helped to create a sense in pride for many of the students, which was good, because that was their job.

all Flags had a rewarding and productive year. With Nancy Nicas and Ken Imaizumi as student leaders they found a lot of enjoyment in their routines.

Their coach, Tammy Parker, enjoyed the sport in high school, and appreciated the chance to continue working in the field.

Ken was the first male captain of Tall Flags. "The captains both worked well with the team members, and were an excellent source of knowledge and experience," said Parker.

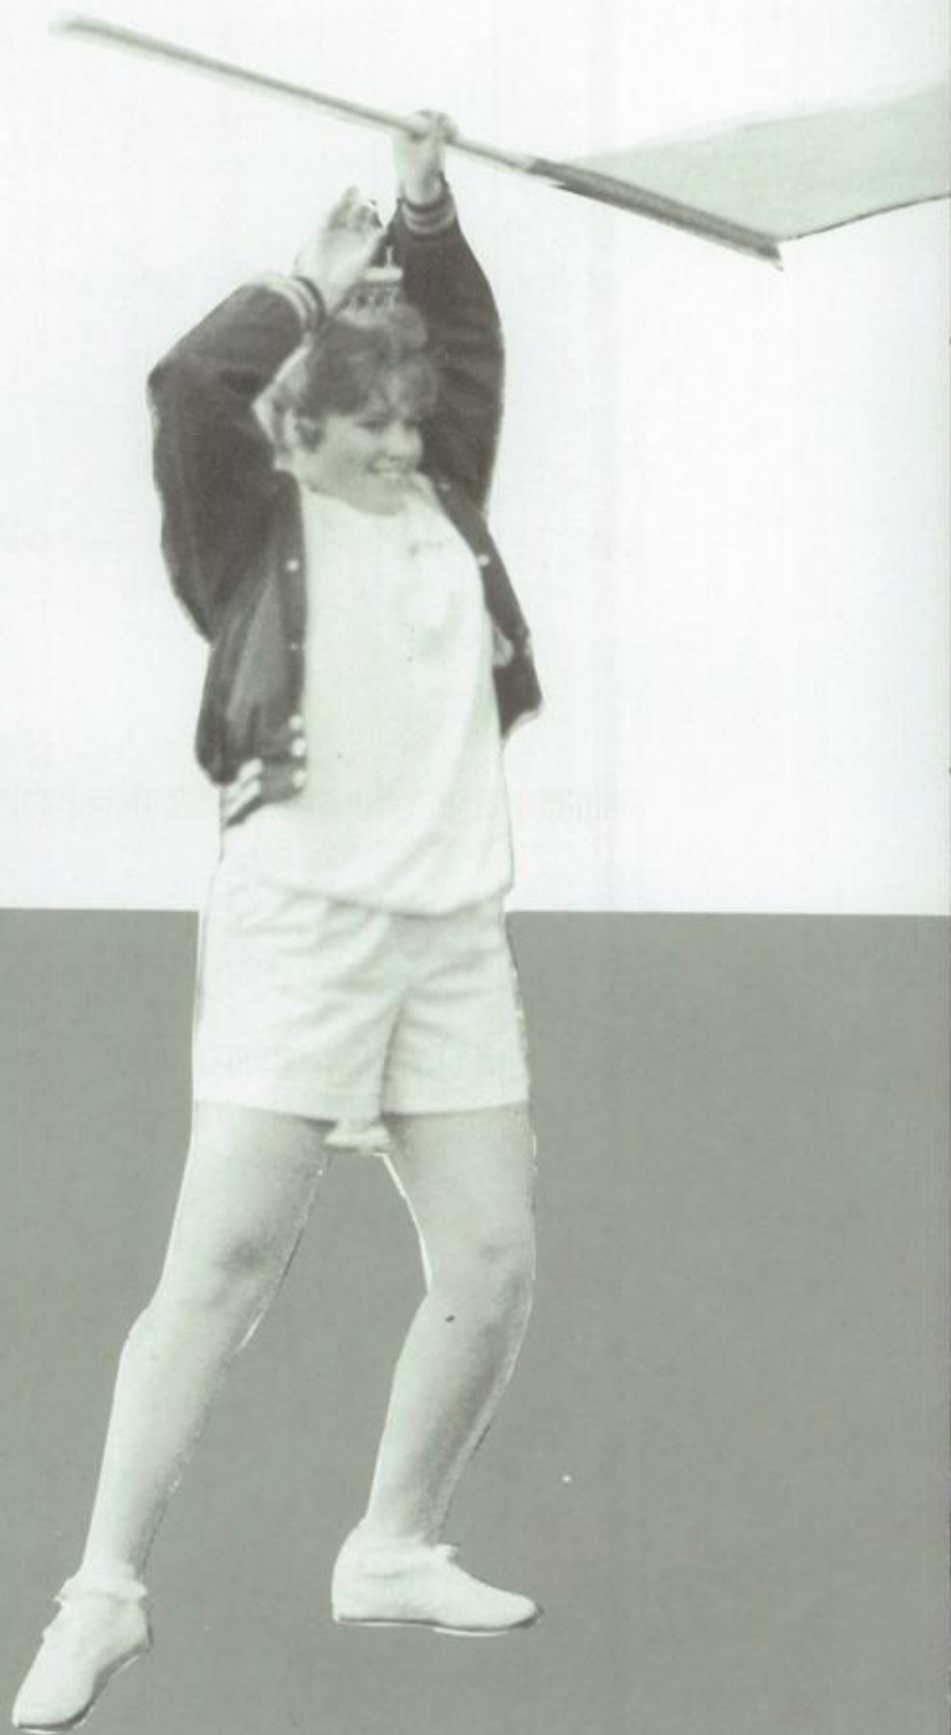

They competed in the Escondido Field Competition, Columbus Day Parade, won first place at the Vista Field Competition, third place at The Mount Carmel Invitational Field and Parade Competition, Lester Oaks, San Dieguito, Oceanside Christmas parade, Santa Barbara Field Competition, and Disneyland Parade.

he Jazz Band and Troubadors participated in the winter and spring concerts and played at mobile home parks around the city at Christmas.

"The kids worked really hard," said Les Samenow, their advisor. Jazz Band performed at half-time basketball games. Neither group, though, entered any competitions.

For the past two years, SMHS has been without a Jazz Band, because of lack of interest. This year however, there seemed to be renewed interest in the group.

"Playing in Jazz Band has been a lot of fun," said Kathy Toler. Mike Ricco, a senior, agreed with his opinion and added, "I think Jazz Band has been a great experience."

The Troubadors and Jazz Band are striving for excellence," said Samenow.

Marching Minstrals

Maria Froehle

What do most band members have to worry about? Being in step, of course! That's not to say there aren't other things on their minds, though.

One example was Jeff Cranney. Not only did he juggle band and football, but also ASB and jazz band. On Fridays during football season, Jeff didn't march with the other tuba players; he went to the locker room with the varsity football team.

Danny Karrer and many other involved students had similar problems. Mr. Samenow's stressing of diligence, hard work, and excellence persuaded them to include band into their schedules.

Show Cheer entered its third year with advisor Barbara Dolan this year. Besides performing at pep assemblies and Calvalcade, Show Cheer also entered numerous competitions with other high schools around Southern California.

At competition, Cheer performs a two minute cheer followed by a two and a half minute music piece. They are judged on creativity of the team, how well their act is executed and showmanship.

Show Cheer placed first at the Maytime competition in National City and second at Knott's Berry Farm.

On the newer side, the Color Guard toughed out its first season this year. Color Guard started on January 28 with tryouts and finished its first season on April 25.

Color Guard was led by junior Nancy Nicas, flag captain; senior Andrea Weinert, rifle captain; sophomore Holly Urban, flag lieutenant; and senior Mary Favia, rifle lieutenant. The advisor was Tammy Parker.

Color Guard performed during the spring, competing at such schools as Vista, and participating at Calvalcade.

Color Guard incorporates grades 10 through 12. Participation requires a year of Flags or Rifles and a high tryout score is recommended. Sixteen members and five alternates were chosen this year.

Be Safe Not SADD

by Dannette Norrid

If you had gone to a party, ended up drunk, and then needed a ride home, you may have called SafeRides.

SafeRides is a school organization which, in conjunction with other local high schools, gives rides to high school students on Friday and Saturday nights and holidays from 10 p.m. to 3 a.m.

The high school volunteers picked up any student who needed a ride home, drunk or not. The members of SafeRides do not want peers out on the streets with a dangerous driver or hitching a ride with a stranger. SafeRides provides a no-questions-asked ride home.

SADD (Students Against Driving Drunk) is becoming a leader in educating the students of SMHS on the facts of driving while under the influence of alcohol.

Brian Kohls, coordinator of SADD and president for the past two years, said, "The assembly we planned was a great success. Hopefully, we reached a lot of people this way by showing them what could happen if they drink and drive."

Key Masters

by Danette Norrid

The Key Club is "an opportunity to mingle with students interested in achieving excellence in extra curricular activities and contributing services to the school and community," said club advisor Gail Orozco.

Key Club members spent their year volunteering time to school and community activities.

The Key Clubbers started the year with a trip to Mount View Convalescent Home in San Marcos during Halloween to talk and sing with the people living at the home. The club also helped out at the "How to Care For Your Heart" at Palomar Community College in October. The annual luminaries at Lake San Marcos was also successful. Food drives and other types of volunteer work rounded out the year for the club.

The members did a fantastic job working with one another to broaden the reputation of the Key Club. Their work during the 1986-1987 year proved that the club has one of the most hard-working group of students in San Diego County.

JAZZ'N STUFF was busy moving to the beat this year when fifty members held a workshop late in October. The dancers also went to dance workshops at other schools.

Another exciting event the club participated in was holding master classes which involved bringing a "master" of the dance arts to the school. The master taught the dancers a piece of choreography and different style of dancing.

JAZZ'N STUFF attended such performances as "Cats" and "Fragmented Justice." The Martha Graham Ballet was another production the club had the pleasure to see.

I'm very pleased to see this many students involved both in taking more advanced level classes and attending professional performances, said their advisor Paige Booth. "They are really getting a good education in the arts."

The Drama Club supports the young actors and actresses of SMHS. The members of the club saw many movies and also worked at clown parties where the aspiring actors and actresses earned money acting as clowns at the children's parties.

Real Geniuses

CSF (California Scholarship Federation) presented an ice cream social this year for the members of their club. Alumni from recent years came to SMHS and spoke of their experiences at college. The former Knights told about some of their problems at college, how they adjusted, and school activities that they were involved in.

Other club activities were ice skating at the University Town Center, seeing a play, and going to Srippl Institute of Oceanography.

The club is set up to give recognition for academic success at SMHS. "It's a great way to find out about colleges and getting more information about possible places to attend after high school," said Jason Schulz, a club member. Ashley Reynolds, CSF president said, "It was a successful year and we accomplished many of our goals."

First You Say It Then You Do It!

The fifth period Publications class produced the yearbook. Big Deal right? What's so special about that? They did it with the help of a three year editor and a first year advisor.

Maria Froehle was on staff for a semester as a freshman and returned as a sophomore, editor-in-chief. She returned as a junior and finally as a senior to be the first three-year editor in the history of San Marcos High School. "Two year editors are rare, but I've never worked with a three-year editor before. Maria is always throwing me curves," said Dick Kerr, the Taylor Yearbook representative.

Sandy Robinson spent her first year at SMHS teaching English. This past year she added Publications and journalism to her busy schedule. A seven year newspaper veteran of school newspaper, she brought her own brand of leadership to a class she has wanted to teach for many years.

Maria and Ms. Robinson didn't do all the work. They had the help of the entire staff. Each person had a specific duty and helped each other for the many deadlines. "The staff was the best I've ever worked with. It would be difficult to imagine a more dedicated group of people," said Maria.

Spanish Club is a club that explores the background of Mexico and its people. They have fun while they do community projects, such as convalescent home visitations.

This year's activities included monthly visits to convalescent homes, a toy drive for needy children, and trips to Mexico to expand students' awareness of the Hispanic way of living.

"This is by far the best year this club has had, for everyone gets involved," said Susana Navarro, president.

Razas Unidas is a club that is involved with the community. Most of the activities involved community participation.

One of the major projects Razas Unidas did this year was taking clothes, food, and toys to an orphanage in Mexico.

"Everyone in the club is very close, like brothers and sisters. We're there when people need us," said Ana Castillo, club president.

The International Club was composed of foreign and American students seeking to increase understanding and communication between themselves and others. The students had a large variety of background from all over the world. The club is open to all students and has information available to anyone who needs to know about foreign countries. Some of the exchange students who made the club so interesting were Dith Mesquita from Brazil, Diego Villecco from Argentina, Karin Nilsson from Sweden, and Nina Seppala from Finland.

Did you need help with your French this year? The French Club was made up of advanced French students who were willing to help anyone who needed extra work.

The club was mainly set up to offer tutoring to the beginning and second year French students who needed help with their French. A list of names and numbers was available that could be called when the students needed help.

"We had some really wonderful people who were interested in French culture and language and who took active roles in the club. I'm happy to be associated with such a dynamic group," said club advisor Jeri Beliveau.

Changing of the Guard

How many of you knew there was a new ASB advisor this year? If you did, that's great; it shows you're involved with the school and what happened this year at SMHS.

If you didn't, you need to get on the ball and be involved with ASB. Les Samenow did a great job this year advising the ASB officers and the Round Table, along with longtime advisor Barbara Dolan.

Some of the reasons Mr. Samenow became ASB advisor was his experience as a teacher — 18 years — and his willingness to put in extra time if it was needed. As ASB advisor he advised the student leaders, communicated with the teachers, and was there to help with any problems the ASB and Round Table had.

Mr. Samenow thought ASB and the Round Table contributed a great deal to SMHS. He said, "They keep the school moving in a positive direction."

If having fun was a priority in your life, then this is the club you should have belonged to. The Science Fiction Club was actively involved in both community and school activities on a continual basis.

With a member body as diverse as the activities, the club was always active. They held out-of-school activities weekly. These activities included trips to a local bookstore, movie "runs" and conventions. Hollywood was the focus for their first semester field trip. "They take children from the city and bring them to the farm. We just took farmers to the city," said club president James Field. The activity for the second semester was a formal dinner. They went to an Encinitas restaurant, then off to a movie. "It gave some people who don't have the opportunity to do stuff like this the chance. It's a lot of fun!" said sergeant-at-arms Greg McNee.

Write On!

Danette Norrid

This was the first time in many years that a beginning journalism class existed. The class taught the students all aspects of journalism. They learned everything from how to conduct interviews, and writing various kinds of newspaper stories, to taking pictures. The aspiring journalists also learned such skills as typesetting and creative layouts. The students, who passed this class will be producing a bi-weekly or monthly school newspaper, The Mark, next year.

In past years, the yearbook staff finished its deadlines in the spring, and then produced several issues of the Mark.

Advisor Sandy Robinson, who is training the students to be serious journalists, said, "This has been one of the best journalism classes I've ever had. The students are very creative and bright as well as dependable."

Toward the end of the school year the class was ready to put out a few issues of the Mark. The class had fun getting into gear for next year. Ms. Robinson said she likes teaching journalism because "It's one of the few 'real' experiences students have in school. They know that their writing for the newspaper is a vital part of school life."

Crafting The World

The Art Club was set up to allow the members to do a large variety of exciting projects that could not be done in class.

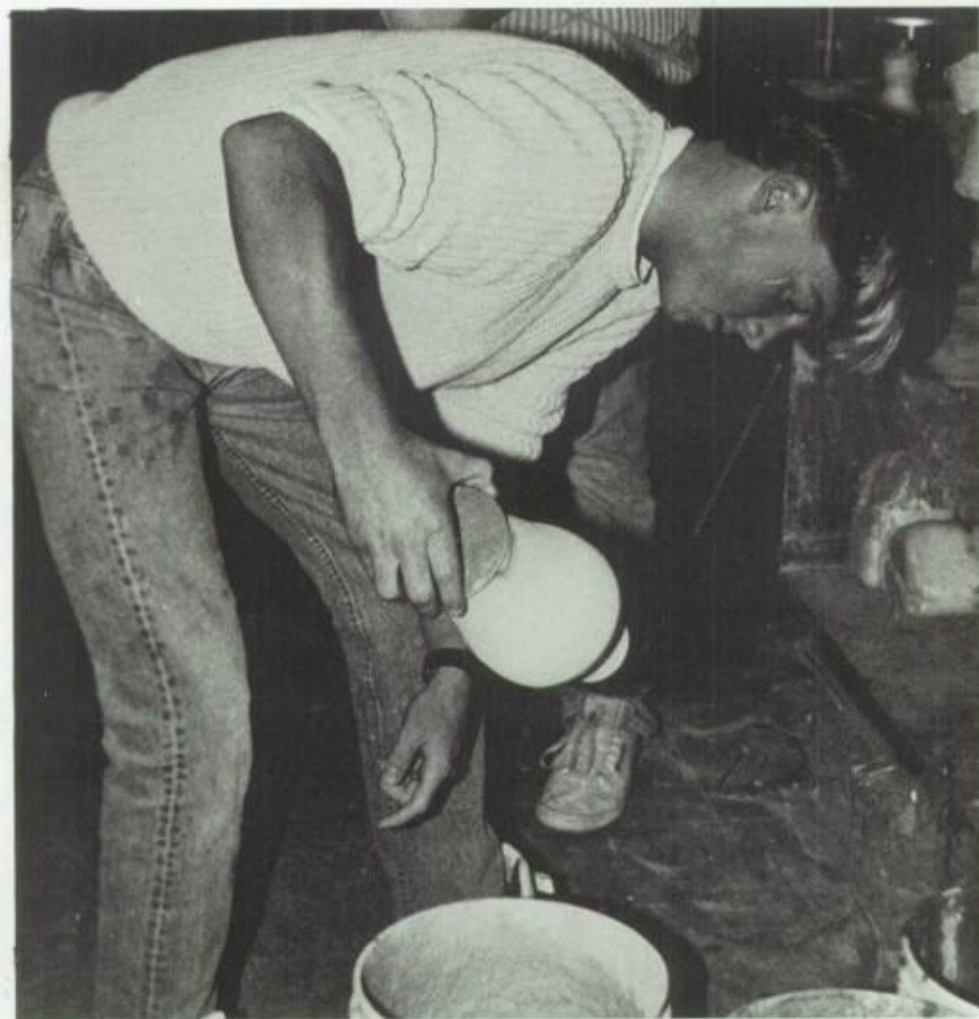

Some of the students were involved in a Tie Dye party, that is tying knots in T-shirts and then dipping them in the dye to make patterns on the shirt. Pumpkin sculpting and making Christmas ornaments were other club activities.

"This year we had a small but enthusiastic group of people that enjoyed hands-on experiences in the arts," said club advisor Susan Lewis.

Potter's Club is much like the Art Club in that it is mainly set up to allow the students who enjoy pottery to do different projects outside of class. The pottery room is full of art that has been made by the students of SMHS. "We are looking forward to more activities in the coming years as the Potter's Guild grows," said advisor Hylton Sanders.

Painting Pepsters

by Danette Norrid

Pep Club is in charge of spirit at SMHS. The club spent every Monday afternoon making signs for schools and sport activities and then decorated the school with them. Painted signs encouraging different events appeared weekly. "It's very uplifting for the athletes to see a banner supporting their particular sport. The signs also tell the other students who SMHS is playing that week so they might want to come and watch the game," said Susana Navarro, a junior.

The club also sold San Marcos Knights caps which sold out within a few days. Char Koons, the club advisor said, "It's been an experience seeing the members putting in so much time and work to spread the spirit and show enthusiasm for the school."

What can students do to get colleges to look at them? One way is to join VICA (Vocational Industrial Clubs of America) a club that students who are interested in vocational fields can join.

Colleges take a special look at students that have participated in competitions held by this club. "VICA holds competitions in vocational fields and awards scholarships and gold medals to the winners," said Phillip Trigas.

Club members gain experience in areas such as job interviews, applications and crafting.

Other students, along with teacher Jon Landen, have been preparing for state and regional competition. "My main goal is to make it to the nationals in Job Interviews," said Brian Hily, VICA member.

Besides setting goals and working on projects, club members also enjoy it. "Being in VICA has been fun!" said Kim Casey.

Our Future

If you want to show off your business skills, FBLA (Future Business Leaders of America) is the club to be in.

FBLA went to state competition last April in Fresno. The competition tested the high school students' business skills.

To start with, the club competed in small conference competitions. The small competitions led up to the state competition. The club also helped elect state officers for FBLA while they were in Fresno.

FFA (Future Farmers of America) is a club that supports the agriculturally involved students of SMHS. The club has land by the campus where they raise animals and learn how to take care of them.

"The people in FFA are my family and we're really a close group," said club president Craig Blackmore. "I believe that FFA prepares not only for tomorrow's agriculture careers, but teaches and encourages the members in many other fields."

Pawns to Spokes

The Bike Club created memories this year every time they took their monthly bike ride. San Clemente, La Jolla, and the Wild Animal Park were just a few destinations the members cycled to.

The club had several helpful presentations at their meetings this year which covered bicycle maintenance and safety, along with the right types of food that should be eaten before a long bike ride. Speakers also came to SMHS to discuss different types of bicycling, like racing and touring. Club advisor Leonard Gann said, "I think it has been a lot of fun to get together in a social setting sharing a common interest in bike riding."

On the non-physical side, the Chess Club had a great time this year playing chess in advisor John Shinn's room during lunch. The club's main events were the two tournaments that they had during the year. The first tournament decided who were the top seeds at SMHS. The tournament in the spring determined the chess champ of 1987. "Chess is a game that causes you to have to think ahead, and in that respect it is very much like life," said Mr. Shinn.

Passing the Pigskin

by Kerry Lupro

The Fighting Knights started out their league season with a 7-0 victory over El Camino, and it ended at the 2A CIF play-offs.

They continued fighting hard reaching their goal to be the best. With the help of head coach Ken Broach, and some very determined players, the Knights ended their playing season with a 6-4-1 record.

The Knights fought hard against the Carlsbad Lancers to have a 27-7 victory on Homecoming night. They played strong throughout the entire game to keep their undefeated league record. Senior Josh Williams said, "We're the best! Nobody can beat us!"

The Knights' only league defeat was against Oceanside with a 0-20 loss. "We just weren't prepared for this kind of challenge," said one coach. The team came together to complete the season with victories.

One of the best plays used this season was the 37-yard field goal kicked by senior Abel Neri. Coach Broach said, "It was a long shot, but we knew Abel would come through for us." The field goal gave the Knights a 9-7 victory over Tor-rey Pines, prepping them for the 2A CIF rematch against Crawford. The Knights lost the game (19-20) because of a last minute touchdown by the opponent, but they are ready to fight again next year. Some of the all-league players consisted of seniors Jim "HOSS" Jennings, Danny Karrer, Abel Neri and juniors Scott Ashby, Brian McDaniel, and Jess Williams.

Special miniature footballs were given to star offense and defense teams. Players like Jim Jennings, Steven Neal, Abel Neri, Jess Williams, and Josh Williams were awarded with the footballs during the pep assemblies.

Jim Jennings was an outstanding varsity football player. He played for four years in the position of fullback. Jim's coach, Ken Broach, said, "He was not only an outstanding student, but he also helped tremendously with the race to the championship." Jim feels that he contributed as much as possible to the game and his team.

1. A charging knight? That's what Fallbrook must have thought as their opposition was unable to deter this valiant charger. 2. One of the San Marcos Knights leaves three Carlsbad defensive players to eat the dust. His excellent offensive play led San Marcos to a (27-7) win over the Lancers. 3. Scott Masters made many defensive tackles this year, this is just one. Scott was ranked seventh for defensive tackles on the varsity team.

Future Knights

The JV football team opened the season with a game against El Camino, winning 25-7. They were all determined and worked hard for their goal. Football is a tough sport. To take all the pushing, shoving, tackling, and meanness of each individual. Their record this year was 3-7. They beat Carlsbad, Oceanside, and Ramona with shutouts. Each young man worked toward his goal at practices and games, goals of either getting more yards rushed, passes completed, or whatever they needed to improve. Being number "ONE" is not always what to work for. They must also improve physically and mentally, then do the best they can.

This past year Matt Herr was a sophomore. This burly 6'3" offensive left tackle gave 100 percent during practices and games. His coaches, Jack Ashby and John Morello, said, "Matt is the most consistent offensive lineman and has an outstanding attitude." What Matt likes most about the coaches is that "they don't yell and criticize; instead they show you how to do it." Since he is only a sophomore he is more than likely to succeed in the football scene at San Marcos High School.

Singh Sings Praises

by Kim Knowles

The freshman football team opened the season with Orange Glen a 0-2 loss. But they pulled together and showed they could work successfully as a team. Head coach Billy Singh, ending his second year as coach for the freshman team said he enjoys working with the team and remarked, "They got better and better as the season went on."

The team consisted of many potential players including captain Josh Tirado, quarterback Brandon Clanton, and most improved player Pat Griffith. The school record was also broken for all time interceptions. Reggie Ingram had broken his opponents stride nine times all year. The team did extremely well and won five out of the last six games.

A pro-baller in the works? Or maybe an architect? These are Josh Tirado's aspirations for the future. The reason he's in football now is because he likes to take the ball and run. Although he was only in his first year of high school, he has plans to try his hardest to play football for as long as possible.

The Girls' Varsity Tennis team finished the year with a final standing of 6-6 taking fourth place in the league. These girls should be recognized for their hard work and determination. Erin Gunnarson was one such member. She had a winning score percentage of 77.9. Also, Ashley Reynolds came in second with a 69.5 winning percentage. They both had six sweeps each. Hard work evidently pays off. At one of the league games, they showed their determination by winning against Ramona, 28-0.

The girls' JV tennis team had a (10-2) record this year. Like the varsity team they were very strong and determined. They were all proud of the work they did, because they had to move their bodies correctly, as well as watch the ball and focus their minds on it. No mean feat! They kept up their morale and determination with the help of Coach Gary Lostal. He told them as long as they did their best and put their minds into their matches, that that was what counted. Lostal loves working with the girls and teaching them. Their motto was "anyone can do anything if they put their minds to it."

Would you like to run outside in the cold four to five miles a day? Members of the girls' varsity cross-country team had to do it, and all managed to do it without killing themselves.

It took hard work and these team members were willing and ready. The girls worked very hard, long hours before each meet. For most of them it was for their own personal satisfaction.

Freshman Alyssa VanSchmus was a varsity runner coached by Ken Franklin for the first time. She said, "Coach Franklin is easy to talk to and can relate to students. To get ready for a race, I think a lot about it. I get intense." Coach Franklin agrees, "She is one of the hardest working girls on the squad. I'm very glad she was on the team." Alyssa, who has a 4.0 G.P.A. thinks "cross-country is cool" and really loves to run those hills.

Come on guys, keep going, just one more mile! They have sore, strained muscles and their legs are dragging. Arms feel like rubber, just hanging there. Sweat rolls down their faces. There seems no end to the race. Finally, the finish line, a feeling of accomplishment spreads through the runners. The team runs very well together. With the help of Coach Drew Swonetz, they made it to the Avocado League Championships. The first race was against Ramona, with a win of 6-0. Their streak lasted when they ran against San Pasqual, and won 5-1. The varsity team ended with three wins, one tie and three losses.

Jim Lynch was one person who really knew where he was going. He ran cross-country for three years and spent all of them on varsity. What he liked most about his sport was the personal satisfaction in running. Jim had a 4.0 GPA and is planning to attend the Air Force Academy where he hopes to become a pilot. Jim's one message is "reach for the stars and you'll never come up with a handful of mud."

Individual Pay-Off

by Kerry Lupro

Come on crew, just a couple more miles . . . that was the cry heard by the 1986-87 junior varsity cross-country team, headed by coaches Ken Franklin and Drew Swonetz. Cross-country was not as glamorous as football, but the team still worked together to make it through the season.

Aside from rigorous physical workouts which entailed up to 25 miles a week, and more for some individuals, intense concentration and independent will power stood as vital necessities. "Thriving on individual determination was where the rewards were," said one runner. Frank Yakely said, "Recognition isn't what's important. I run for myself and for the team." There were plenty of speed workouts, running up and down hills and other natural obstacles to keep them together, and all of these activities took a great deal of strength and endurance. Above all, it all took the power to say, "I can," when the body said, "I can't," the power to push one's self to the limit.

The varsity field hockey team had another exciting year. Their overall record of 34-11 showed their hard work as it took them to third place in the county. Many people say "What's so fun about hitting a puck with a stick on a field?" But to do this the players need coordination and skill, which these girls had to have. Coach Lynn McCarthy was pleased to work and help each individual perfect her sport and sportsmanship. The determined sophomores and juniors on the team will make a strong foundation for next year.

Senior Becky Steiger played left forward on the varsity team as she has done all four of her high school years. She had a 3.4 GPA and took an honors class, critical thought, to help her achieve her goal of attending UCSB in the fall. To win, she concentrated on what she and the team had to do to win and did it well. What Becky liked most about field hockey was that Coach McCarthy listened and was understanding. Becky is well on her way into the athletic world by being voted most athletic by her senior classmates.

Putter Power

This year the JV girls' field hockey team had a record of 7-4, even though they were tough girls determined to win. They were girls that were undaunted by other players' sticks, grueling practice, little time for homework and long bus rides. In a sport that takes coordination, the girls did their best to keep the puck from opposing teams and to make points. They also did it well; in most of their games the other team had zero points. Their record speaks for their determination.

Junior varsity player, Karen Leonard, has only been playing field hockey for one season, but has already made a name for herself. In the position of right linker, which she enjoys, she would like to give her coach a special thanks. She considers her fair and likes her a lot. Karen's future goals are "attending a college with lots of cute guys and majoring in life science." She's enjoyed the season very much and plans to continue playing throughout high school. When asked what she liked most about playing, it was the experience of meeting new people and making new friends.

Inspirational Team

by Kerry Lupro

Bump! Set! Spike! The mood was tense, one more ace serve and we would have it. It was about this time in a game when the players might doubt their abilities. Would I miss it? Will I screw up? Nobody would know for sure until it was too late. These thoughts were too insane to cross the minds of the 1986-87 girls' varsity volleyball team.

The mainstream of spirit on this year's volleyball court came from the enthusiasm and the strong abilities of the players as well as the continuous helpful support from the volleyball coach, Nancy Frahm. Coach Frahm had high expectations for her team because of their strength and their ability to work together as one. If they had uncertainties and doubts, they overcame them at the end of the year and ended the year with a great record.

Gladys Santiago, the junior setter for the '86-'87 varsity volleyball team knows where she wants to go. "I would like to attend UCLA majoring in medicine then become a doctor," she said. With her strong 3.8 GPA Gladys' future looks bright and she hopes to continue playing volleyball in the future. Gladys remarked that her coach, Nancy Frahm really understands and helps each individual. Gladys said that she doesn't need to pep herself up before a match because she's always peppy!

Hard Work but Worth It

by Kerry Lupro

Along with jogging and running the bleachers of the football field, the JV girls' volleyball team practiced their individual fundamental skills such as passing, smashing, serving, and spiking everyday. Team offense played an important role in the success of the game. Without the cooperation and team effort between players, winning would have been impossible. Setter, Yvette Gurule said that she learned a lot this year and that the coaches did more than just teach volleyball, they really cared about the players. "They were really cool," said one of the team members.

Along with volleyball, junior Yvette Gurule participates in basketball, swimming and softball. This is her second year as the junior varsity setter and would love to continue playing volleyball in college. "I'm still undecided on which college to go to or my major, but I know I want to be my own boss!" Yvette said her best moment this year was finally making a spike over.

Self Motivation

by Kerry Lupro

Under new coaching, the boys' varsity basketball team did well, throughout the season. Ric Thompson kept the boys winning with help from some returning varsity players like Mike Francis, Keith Helm, Mike Peyroux, Tim Odom, and new additions such as Jess Williams, Marc Villalobos, and Rick Ebert. This year, along with the ten man combination of six juniors and four seniors was one sophomore, Matt Barrick.

What does the future hold for senior Mike Francis? "I'd like to go to a J.C. up north somewhere to play basketball," he said. Mike has been playing basketball for 11 years, four of them for San Marcos. His main position was point guard, but he also played small forward. Some of his other interests are having fun and making people laugh.

Control of the Ball

by Kerry Lupro

Cool man, Tom Morton steals the ball ... breaks from his opponent ... dribbles down the court ... he shoots ... it's good!! Two points for the squires!

Basketball requires speed, action, and teamwork. The 1986-87 boys' junior varsity basketball team displayed these qualities, as well as their own unique style of action-packed games and tricky plays. Led by returning players, such as Scott Ashby and Tom Morton and under the combined talents of coaches Ric Thompson and Ken Franklin, the team kept a "never say die" attitude.

Ken Franklin kept the boys winning with more help from the rest of the junior varsity players. The remaining nine players were Travis Sweitzer, Mike Haas, Randy Lee, Matt Goff, Steve Baum, Joe Buchanan, Jay Kitti, Denis Pollak, John McKinley and Joey Balardeta.

The most supportive player on the Junior Varsity Basketball team this year was Jay Kitti. Coach Ken Franklin said, "He is the leading scorer. Without Jay we wouldn't be where we are." Jay's position is center and has a 3.7 GPA. His plans are to go to Arizona State. Jay has been playing for 12 years and says basketball is fun to play and that Coach Franklin is a nice guy.

Working as One

by Kerry Lupro

The freshmen basketball team hustled hard this year to make themselves known on the courts. Newcomers like Tracy Beasley, Tom Calac, and Jesse Mojica are good examples of Knights in the making. These boys, as well as the rest of the frosh team used their coordination and skills to make a name for themselves around San Marcos campus:

Pat Griffith, this year's MVP, is a veteran to the basketball courts. His interests are video games and other sports.

Field Work

by Kerry Lupro

Perhaps what made the team incredible this year was the enormous amount of talent that showed up to play. One player said the strategy was quite simple. "We used our opponents' mistakes to our advantage," one player said. With a strong offensive team the Knights took advantage of every player on each soccer team they confronted. "We make the other team realize their weaknesses," said another player. This year's team showed all opponents their own faults.

Senior varsity player, Steve Coulter has been playing soccer for thirteen years. Coach Ogden said, "Steve is a real solid player, and he keeps the team fired up." Steve's position was fullback and said he liked the physical aggression involved in soccer. He is known on the field as "Hitman" and said his coach was a friend as well as a coach. What does Steve like most about SMHS? "I like that everybody here knows each other."

Speed and Talent

by Kerry Lupro

The boys' JV and freshman soccer teams had many talented guys playing for them. "A lot of the kids are important assets to our team. They're a good bunch of hardworking guys," said Coach Sean Allee. Some of the extraordinary players were Rob Hunter, Mark Haans and Colby Sherwood, all representing JV and Jason Coulter, Tom Brown and Jason Bellomy for frosh.

The soccer teams worked long, hard hours at practice to win their games and head on to CIF. Soccer is a foot sport which requires an incredible amount of concentration and coordination.

Mark Haans is one player who really excels in soccer. His position, which he has been playing for six years, is defensive sweeper. When asked what he liked most about soccer the answer was winning and competition. But Mark's interests don't stop on the field, he also excels in school. He has a 3.7 grade point average. His future goal is to attend the Air Force Academy and to become a pilot.

Keeping Backs Off the Mat

Your opponent struggles to roll on you, sensing your superiority, and you shove his arm across his face and cut off his breathing. He wiggles frantically to keep his shoulder blades off the mat for a few seconds and then slows, your iron grip draining his last spurts of energy along with his breath. Then "Wham!" The referee's hand slaps the mat as the whistle blows and you have won your team six more points, adding another pin to your record.

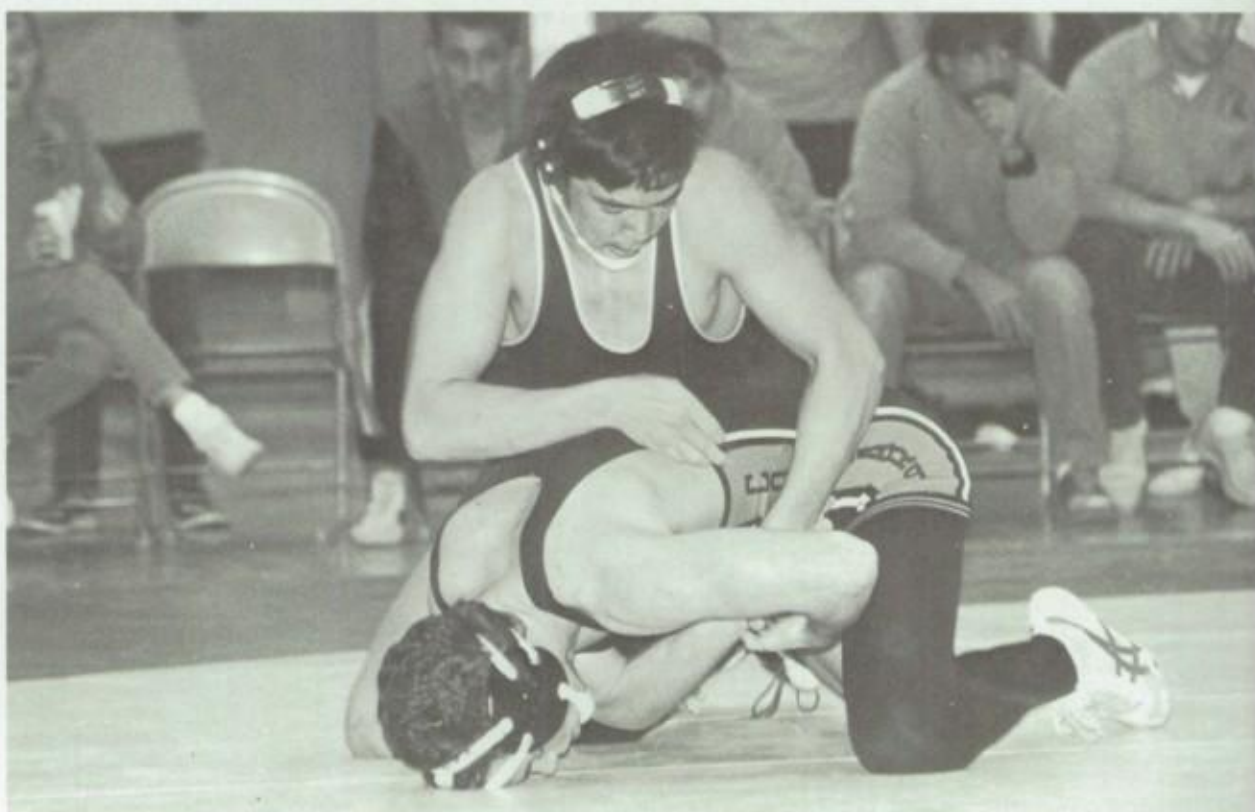

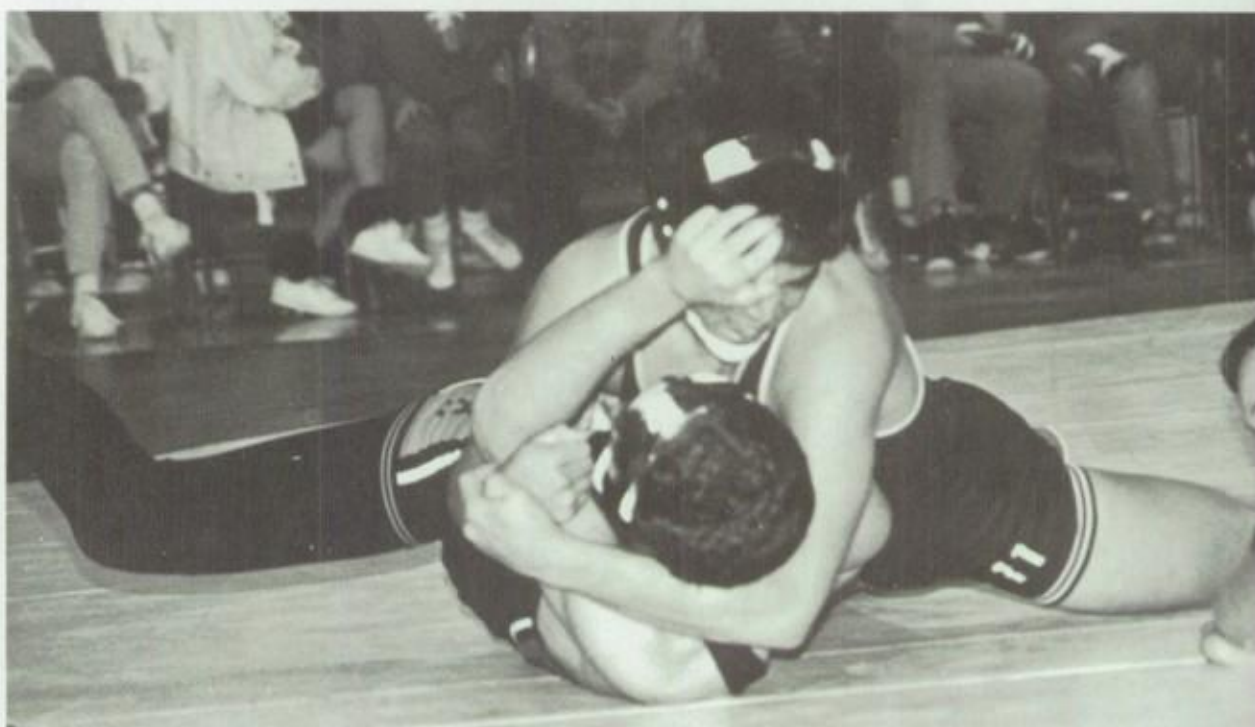

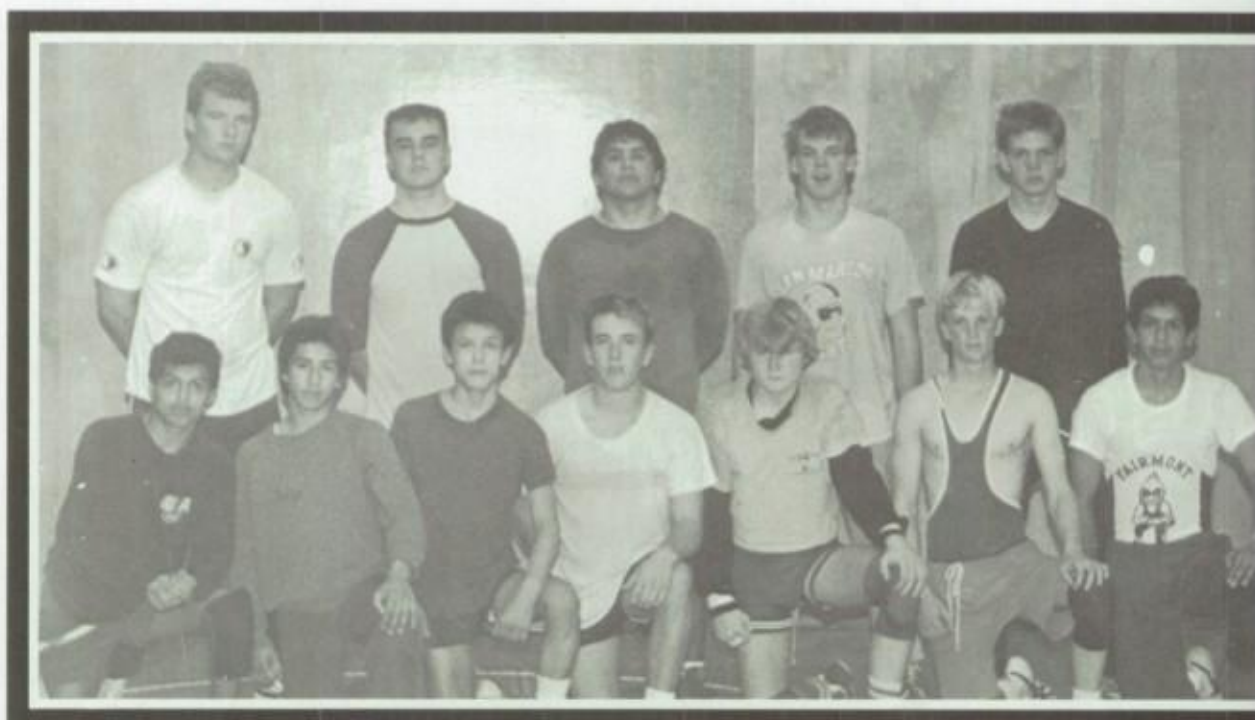

This was the dream that kept every wrestler going this winter when he stepped back onto the mat for another afternoon of grueling practice headed by Coach Roger Hartman. Returning Varsity wrestlers like Joe Ward, Jim Jennings and Jimmy Richardson helped keep the Knights' backs off the mat and the opponents' on it for another successful year.

Joe Ward has been wrestling for four years, along with wrestling, he also plays football and he enjoys dancing. This senior wants to major in business after high school and when he commented on his best moment, he said, "Pinning a guy from Carlsbad without using my hands."

Wrestling Conditions

by Kerry Lupro

The Iron Sheik, British Bulldogs, and Hulk Hogan — all those that watch professional wrestling know these names. The fans scream with delight when an opponent is dropped with a dreaded atomic blow and limps out of the ring. The wrestlers fight tough and dirty, but after all, it is entertainment. "Wrestling is a tough sport," said a JV wrestler. "It's hard to overcome the stereotyped image the so-called pros give wrestling." Our amateur athletes work hard in order to condition themselves both mentally and physically to be in shape for their next challenge.

Sophomore Sam Rivera said he wants to continue to be on the wrestling team throughout high school. Sam has only lost a few matches and has shown he is very skilled. He said, "I like to thrash other people." And from his record, it is obvious he does a good job at it.

Freshman Brandon Clanton is an excellent wrestler. He also played on the freshman football team and baseball team. Brandon said, "I like SMHS better than junior high, partly because of the block schedule." He maintains a 3.0 GPA

Putting Their Best Feet Foward

by Kerry Lupro

The girls' soccer program at SMHS has always had impressive teams, but have always taken back seat to the boys. Granted, our boys' team is exceptionally good, but our girls are half the reason why the soccer program here has been so dominant in the Avocado League. A veteran varsity player said, "We just have to work harder to prove ourselves. Our team is awesome!" Players Michelle Williams, Korene Imaizumi and Becky Steiger kept the ball in motion and the points up.

Using Their Feet

by Kerry Lupro

The most important characteristic of a good soccer player is to be able to anticipate what is going to happen next. One has to know where the opponent is going with the ball," said Erika Rick. The team had an abundance of talent and an incredible ability to handle the adversity and comeback when they were down. They wanted to come back, with all the competitiveness and emotion that brought them together. The team played their hearts out and were a success mentally, emotionally, and, most of all, physically.

Leading Ladies of the Court

by Nanci Davis
The Girls' Varsity Basketball team had a good season. With many supportive players they did their best. The players had a lot of fun during practices but knew when to get serious and play tough when it came to a game. The team didn't have an easy year but they pulled through to show their talents. Coach Bob Kellison remarked, "The team has so much strength when working together."

Most Valuable Player, Susie O'Brien, commented, "We still have a lot to learn but we're getting there." The team will hopefully be even stronger next year with talented players like Nikki Corley. Even though she had a knee injury, she continued to show enthusiasm.

This year's most valuable player was Susie O'Brien. Susie's position on the varsity team was forward. Coach Bob Kellison said, "Susie has a great deal of potential." Susie said she loves basketball because "it's fast paced and exciting." She also likes it that Coach Kellison is so patient and doesn't yell much. She believes sports make a person more determined. Susie also said, "If you do your best in whatever you do and give 100 percent, you will come out on top."

Female Knights in the Making

by Kerry Lupro

The junior varsity basketball team had a strenuous year. They only had a few losses. The majority of their games, they defeated the other team. Coach Leonard Gann said, "The girls are so concentrated on winning, they play their absolute best!" One team member commented, "We all work together and play hard and aggressive."

Amy Price had many successful free throws and rebounds. With so many dedicated players it's no wonder the Knights came out on top. The JV team increased their record 7-1 with a 37 to 29 point win against Escondido. Alyssa Thomas remarked, "Escondido was tough but we were better!"

The team kept striving to rank first in the county. The team consists of exceptional players like most supportive player, Michelle Jones. Coach Gann said, "She is so devoted to playing her best in all the games."

by Nanci Davis

Michelle Jones has been playing basketball for five years. Her position is right wing. Coach Leonard Gann said, "She's fast and knows exactly what to do." Michelle has a 3.92 GPA and plans to get a degree in business administration and would like to go to Stanford University. Michelle not only did well in basketball but also played on varsity volleyball and the swim team.

Waves of Endurance

by Kerry Lupro

Although they were still a young team, they had a lot of spirit and a lot of drive, despite the diminished turnout. According to team members, competitive swimming is not an easy sport, contrary to popular belief. It is both physically and mentally demanding.

Two year varsity veteran Angie Eggers agreed. "It takes stamina — you have to push yourself! To be a good swimmer you must keep up a good pace and exercise a great deal of self-discipline."

This year the 1987 girls' swim team was blessed with returning swimmers like Jennifer Monreal and Rachel Newport, and will power and strength up.

Making Waves

San Marcos High School's boys' swimming team did well this year. "Junior Ron Huberts was a great example to all the freshman swimmers," said Jeremy Sandor, a freshman first-year swimmer that showed real promise. Coach Ruthe Brown and Coach Bill Singh were back again this year to coach the San Marcos teams. This year was the second year that the team has been with this school since its shut-down in 1978 when it was shut down because of lack of interest. "It's fun and it keeps me in shape for the girls" said one amorous varsity gentleman about practice. The long hours of practice paid off for the team as the times were shaved off by seconds and goals that were made were reached. Much to the satisfaction of the only groans and grumbles at practices were made good naturedly.

Swinging On the Green

As spring approaches, thoughts of baseball come to the minds of fans. The crack of bats, the firm pop of balls hitting gloves, and the kicking up of infield dirt — these sounds mean spring has arrived. The Knights' varsity team prepared for this season with more intensity than the past campaigns. The reason was that half the team members were seniors and knew "This was it!" Realization of the Avocado

League pennant and CIF playoffs dreams were to come now or never. Anxious team members worked hard together during the off-season and it showed. The squad's talent was apparent and so was their unity. "Our goal is the playoffs," said last year's MVP, Jose Canedo. With excellent pitching and solid defense. Moving Up

by Kerry Lupro

Team work is the name of the game," explained Coach Dean Hall.

The JV and Frosh teams were strong and powerful. Summing up both teams in a few short words would be that they are "hard working" and have "fine potential." Each team consisted of enthusiastic players, all of whom practiced endless hours of batting, running, sliding, in-fielding and outfielding to prepare for their seasons. Coaches expected returning players to show leadership and experience toward new players. The JV team mostly prepared themselves for future positions on varsity.

hat does it take to make a winning team? SMHS varsity tennis has had to what it takes in the past as they were defending the Avocado League championship this year. "To become Avocado League Championship and qualify for CIF Playoffs are our main goals," coach Bruce Storrs said.

The team had all the qualities they needed to accomplish their goals. "The strongest thing about our team is the fortitude," said Aaron Tucker, a senior member of the team.

Another strong aspect about the team was the returning players. San Pasqual was the toughest team San Marcos faced this year.

Volleyball is a game full of nonstop action that includes bumping, setting, and spiking. San Marcos has several guys who really enjoy this sport: the varsity boys' volleyball team. Definite Forces

Volleyball is a game in which the players hit a ball back and forth across a net with their hands and arms. To the San Marcos boys' JV team, however, volleyball was a way of life. At the beginning of the season, Coach Dan

Samaniego said, "We're going to be a definite force this year." The enormous turnout that showed for tryouts would tend to agree with him. "We were more evenly matched this year," he added. "Last year, JV played against varsity level foes."

Hitting Home

by Danette Norrid

The 1987 was an exciting season for the SMHS varsity softball team. The team had a mix of experience and inexperience. Half the starters were not seniors but the younger players had a great deal of talent. The team's strength was its excellent pitchers.

Leading the team, Celeste Hook, had an outstanding season pitching her team to many wins. Janell Monett and Alisa Thomas, both pitchers, also added strength to the team.

The major obstacle facing the team was replacing the infield. All the infield players except second base graduated last year. Coach Leonard Gann said "I really enjoyed working with this group of great kids." Even though it was difficult, an excellent job was done replacing the graduated members.

The 1987 track team had a season full of effort. Edy Smith led the team with outstanding work. Her events are high jump at 5.2 feet and triple jump, which was 35 feet. Edy also runs the 100 hurdles, in which her time was 16 seconds. The entire team as a whole has done very well. Each individual has worked to his fullest this year. Another excellent athlete is Alyssa Van Schmus. She ran the mile at 5.3, did the high jump at 4.8 feet, and the long jump at 15 feet. Coach Ken Franklin inspires all the girls as he cheers all of them on. "Encouragement is a major part of track," he says.

Edy Smith, a junior, is on the varsity knights track team. After graduation, she would like to go on to college and major in physical education. If possible, she will be on the track team. Edy enjoys track because it is an individual sport and she likes to meet new people. Her events are high jump, in which her best jump was 4.1 feet and she would like to get up to 5.2. Her best triple jump was 35.1 feet, and she also runs the 100 hurdles, her best time being 17 seconds. She wants to get down to 16.

Steve Chavez is a sophomore on the San Marcos Knights track team. He would like to continue running and said he would like to go into the Air Force Academy after graduation. Steve, who has a 4.0 GPA said, "Track is a sport where a person can be recognized as an individual." His events are 440, 880, and mile relay. He is an excellent runner. Steve notes that for "speed there is no substitution."

by Nancy Davis

The boys' 1987 track team had an excellent year full of experienced runners. One of their secrets was to encourage each other. They never gave up when things looked bad. One sprinter commented, "All anyone can ask for is that we do our best and that's what we do." The team had some new coaches, including head coach Will Cain. He has a very positive attitude and he passed it on to the students. With this attitude the team will probably be a threat to other teams in the league next year. With such great coaches and athletes it's no wonder the track team had such a good season.

Swinging on the Green

Roughs and greens, woods and irons, yards and inches, strength and finesse, agony and ecstasy. It is a game where the opponents live just as much inside you as they do around you. A game where you're only as good as your last shot. It is the game of golf. Where stroke after stroke, hole after hole, round after round, pressure masquerades as relaxation. To those who thrive on it, the striving can be summed up in one word, consistency.

The word consistency describes SMHS' 86-87 Varsity Golf team and golfers like Mark Nichols and Scott Kamachi kept the team in good standings.

Tee for One

"Fore!" by Kerry Lupro
The sound of the golfer's voice carries across the broad expanse of the course. With a swishing sound the driver connects with the small, white ball. Like a rocket, it is propelled towards the green. With a smile, the golfer rests his club upon his shoulder and strolls down the fairway. The JV golf team attacked the course that was fraught with hazards like sand traps. The team was able to overcome such handicaps to enjoy a fine season.

The game of golf is interesting. It has been described by many students of the game as frustrating, challenging, and probably one of the most difficult sports to master. Golf is unique in the fact that you do not want to score a lot of points. A golfer tries to use the least number of strokes possible. "Golf is every bit as demanding as any other sport. Mental awareness is a must. That is probably what defeats most golfers when they enter tournament play."

Reaching for the Apple

by Beth Hatten

Jessica Vanoni is one who hopes to go far in her life. By participating in the Drama Club, she became more interested in the drama field. Jessica loves acting and dancing, which are her interests, and along with these comes the passion for being outdoors. In the future, Jessica wants to own a spa in New York. When not dancing or acting, Jessica spends time with her friends and watches old movies. When asked what changes she would like to see in the school, Jessica said she wanted people to be more casual and more mature. Jessica is one who is sure to reach her goals.

In this year's survey, we asked what attracts a girl to a guy and a guy to a girl. Girls tend to be attracted to a guy by his personality, especially if he's outgoing. Next comes his physical appearance. When a girl meets a guy, his most alluring features are his eyes and smile. For a guy, he is most attracted to a girl by her physical appearance and then her personality. This is followed by a sense of humor, and her smile is her most alluring feature.

Mechanical Motion

by Beth Hatten

Jesse Mojica is one of San Marcos High School's active freshmen. He participated in several sports, playing double-back football, second baseman in baseball, and point guard in basketball. At 5'4", Jesse relies on his poeod to lead the team to victory. In the future, Jess would like to attend a college near Los Angeles where he can be close to work. He plans to work in his uncle's garage there and eventually become an auto mechanic. He prefers the older models to the newer ones, and the '57 Chevy is his favorite car. Although Jesse likes wrestling, he cannot participate in this sport because he plays basketball, and both of these sports are in the same season. "The school should let you play more than one sport each season," said Jesse. Coach Broach said "He's debonair, suave, and has a passion for tall girls." But on the serious side, he added, "He's a very good competitor and has a good personality." Jesse Mojica has a prosperous future ahead of him, both in high school and career.

Sophomores

The tenth grade class this year had a great time. The class of '89 had many goals, and reached them. They made the most possible amount of money to put towards next year's Jr./Sr. Prom. Some of the fund-raisers included T-shirt sales, class ring sales, and the Christmas Dance. Mr. John Shinn, sophomore class advisor, played Santa Claus as he has been jolly Saint Nick for the past three years. Vice-President Shannon Frits hope that next year's sophomore class will plan ahead far enough in advance to reserve a good place to have the dance because all possible dance locations were either booked or too small. The sophomore class officers are pleased with the class. President Lori Pribil added, "We'd like to have more school spirit by participation in pep rallies and dances." Shannon had fun being an officer, and working with the other officers. "We have a lot of the same ideas and they're easy to work with," she said. Mr. Shinn has been a tremendous help with the class. He puts out flyers often seen around campus that keep everyone up to date about our school. Overall, Mr. Shinn and the officers had a great year and are anxiously awaiting the forthcoming year.

Kim Glaser, a member of CSF and the Key Club, participates in many activities out of school as well as in school. Kim plays for the San Marcos City Softball Team and is also active on the swim team. She would like to attend a California college or possibly Penn.

State where she would major in medicine or child psychology

In her spare time, Kim is a life-guard for the city. She loves the beach and often goes shopping or out to the movies. Kim likes helping others with their problems because she likes people. At school, Kim wishes that people would be different and more trendy. Kim Glaser is one who has a great future ahead of her.

Bonnie Orphanos was a very active sophomore this year. She was involved in CSF, Spanish Club, Key Club, and the Art Club. Bonnie was not only busy with extra-curricular activities, but was an excellent student in her classes as well. Honors English and Honors World History were among the top two classes on her busy schedule. Bonnie's spare time is spent playing the piano, swimming, and practicing up on her tennis skills. The only change Bonnie would like to see at SMHS would be to paint the lockers a new color, "because they are boring to look at." Looking into Bonnie's future, she wants to attend UCSD and major in the area of math or science. With such an optimistic outlook on life as Bonnie has, she may become president one day!

Call the Exterminator

W by Beth Hatten

ell, the freshmen did it! They made the top of the charts for people's pet peeves. But don't you ninth graders worry, now you're sophomores and you will understand next year why freshmen are number one in this category. Also, we at San Marcos High really don't appreciate those who are obnoxious, especially those people who are ignorant of being obnoxious. Younger brothers and sisters bug a lot of us, but we have to remember that some of us were once in their shoes. There's nothing more annoying than the popping and snapping noises of gum chewers who don't know how to keep their mouths closed, except for food chewers who allow you to see what they are eating. Last of all comes that eerie, spine chilling feeling one gets when someone runs his fingernails down the chalkboard. So remember, when you're chewing gum or being obnoxious, keep your mouth closed so you won't make your habit someone's pet peeve.

Steve Chavez is a very active student who has participated in many sports. He enjoys running, and was active on the varsity track and cross-country teams. Steve feels he excelled especially in soccer this past year. Although he spent a great deal of time on sports, Steve managed to keep good grades in classes such as Honors English and World History. Steve's good grades have enabled him to be in CSF for the past two semesters. When asked about changes he would like to see in the school, he commented on how SMHS needed more funding for sports. After graduation, Steve plans to go to the Air Force Academy where he wants to major in engineering.

pus could be cleaner. An active, hardworking, ambitious girl like Laura will no doubt go very far in this world.

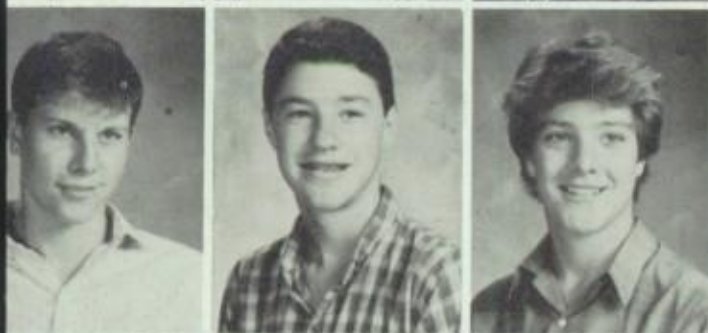

Ever wonder why all the others have dates and you don't? We asked students what was the best way to get a date. By a large majority, the best way to get a date is to ask the girl or guy in person. Flirting and saying you're rich are other big favorites.

Getting Wild Now

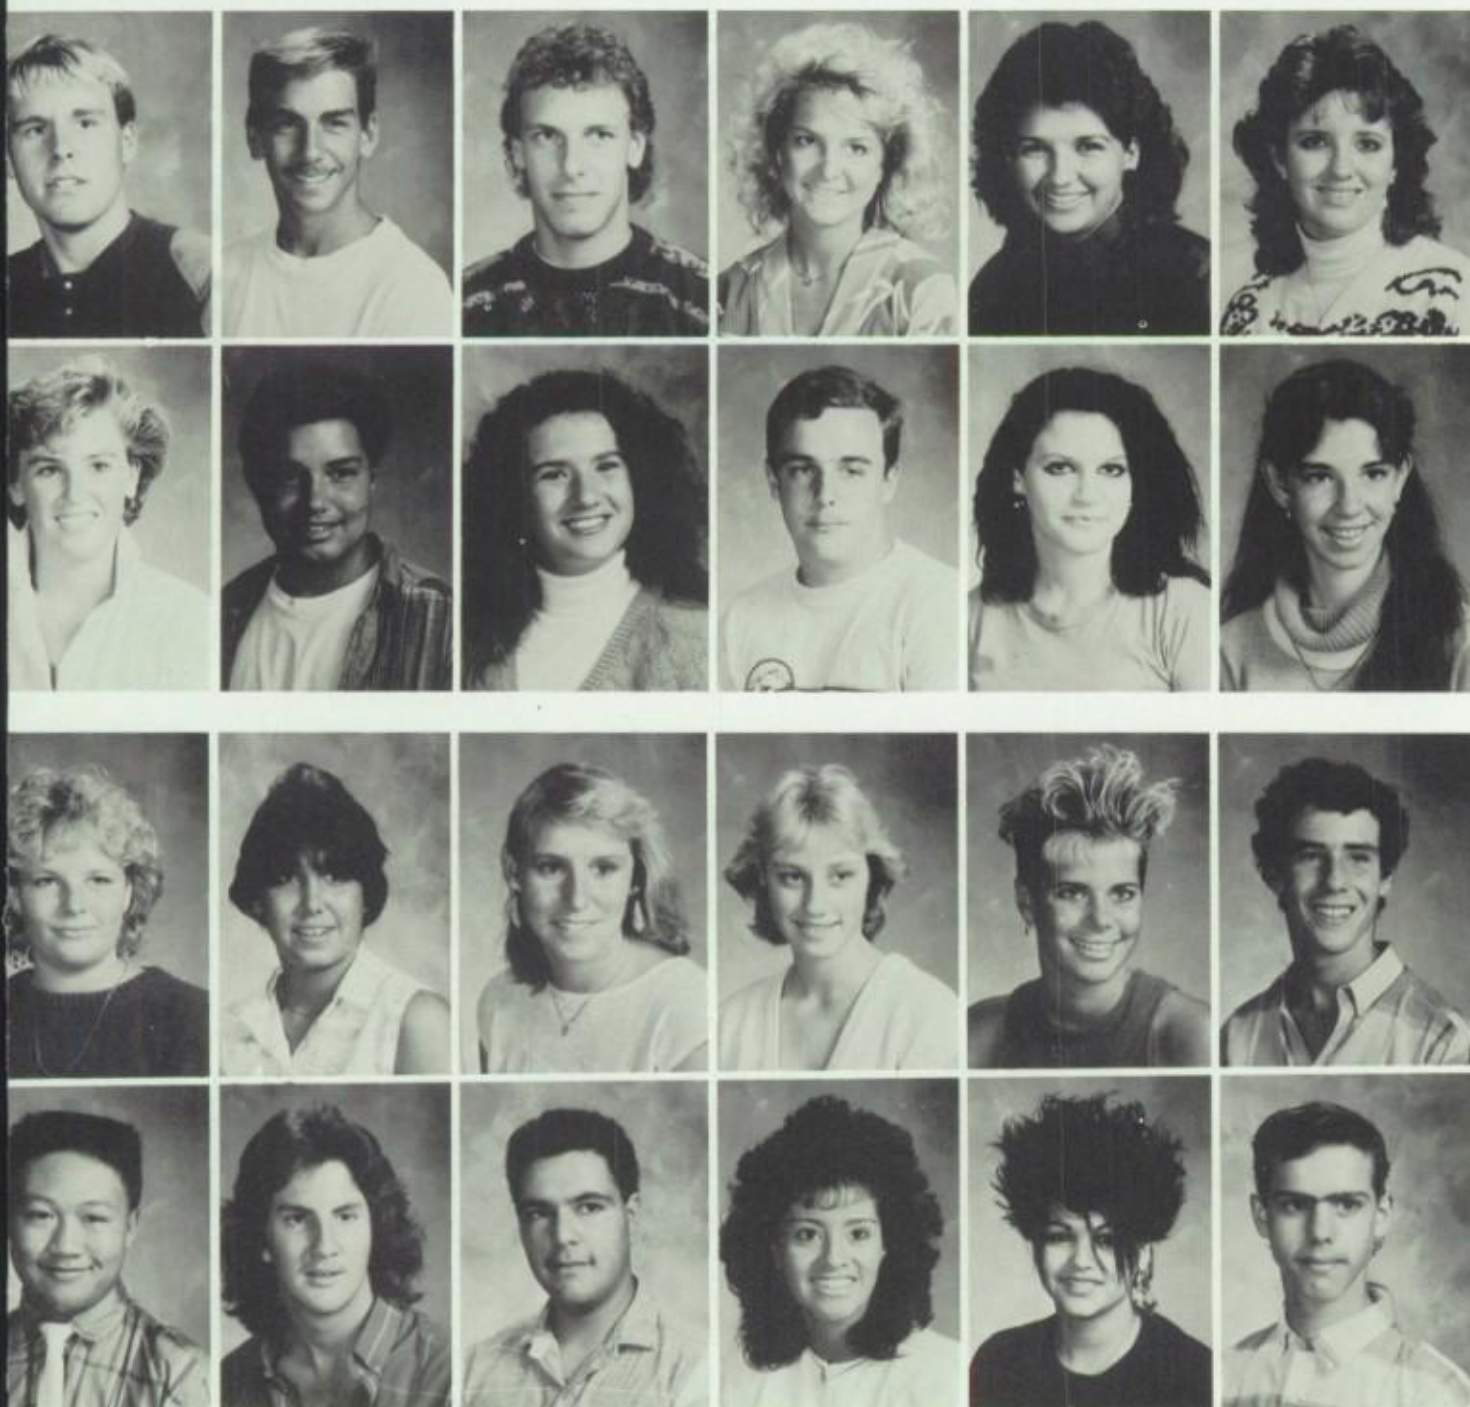

Ashley Reynolds saw a change in school this year that she liked: a wider variety of classes. To Ashley, who was involved in activities such as tennis, basketball, Key Club, the California Scholarship Federation, Spanish Club, and Academic Bowl, school looked pretty good already! Her goals included making the varsity basketball team, and doing her best to get good grades. Ashley likes to read, go to movies, and go horseback riding. She is also kept busy doing secretarial work for the business her family owns. Ashley would like to attend the University of California at San Diego and to become a veterinarian.

"I scream, you scream, we all scream for ice cream," is spreading throughout the campus during lunch. Among these screamers chocolate ice cream was the favorite, followed by vanilla and Oreo cookies 'n' cream. The next favorite, according to our students was chocolate chip mint and last but not least peanut butter 'n' chocolate.

A Sign of Ambition

by Beth Hatten

Lori Peterson is one of this year's outstanding juniors. Lori shows her spirit by participating in the Spanish Club, CSF, and JV tennis. She is so devoted to playing tennis that she quit her job in order to allow herself more time to play. Next year she hopes to make varsity.

Her hobbies include playing the piano, reading, and teaching children in Sunday School. Lori wants to go to college, where she plans to major in sign language and minor in music. After college, she wants to work with and teach the deaf and hearing-impaired because she likes watching people progress. Lori is one of those rare individuals who is willing to devote her time and energy to those who need her help and encouragement.

How much time do you spend on homework? The answer — 58% of the students spend 1-2 hours; 22% do none at all; 17% do 3-4 hours, while 3% are doing a long, long, long, 5 hours per day.

Leading the Way

by Heather Rowell

Larissa Graf thought the freshmen seemed shorter this year — when she wasn't too busy to notice. Her goal this year was to get an "A" in honors history. She would like to go to college and major in dance and someday she would like to be in a Broadway show. In her spare time she enjoys dancing, raising animals, and watching football practices. She is also involved in FFA (Future Farmers of America) and is a song leader. She didn't have a job this year, but she would like to get a summer job working as an apprentice at the zoo.

Cranney's Cranium

by Monica Feeder

Jeff Cranney's free time is spent doing homework, listening to music, surfing, water skiing and snow mobiling. he is the ASB treasurer, plays the tuba and sax for the band and is on the varsity football and track team. When asked what change he wanted to see most in the school, he said he would like to see it look cleaner.

Jeff's plans for the '86-'87 school year are to keep his grades up, make it through track without injuring his back, and make this year's video yearbook the best ever.

After graduation Jeff would like to go on to a four year college and then on to medical school to become a veterinarian. Jeff is unemployed right now, but his future goals look very promising and there is no doubt he will fulfill all of these goals.

We have many Top Gun "studs" and "studettes" at SMHS. The movie attracted many of them. There are Aliens that Stand By Me in the lunch line. When Ferris Bueller took a day off most everyone else did too, but they came Back to School.

On to the Real World

by Heather Rowell

Sheri Strawn has many ambitions for her future. She planned to attend college, hoping to receive a Master's Degree in business, so that she could become a business administrator or run her own fashion business.

At the time of her interview she felt anxious to graduate so that she could pursue her career plans.

Sheri, a California Scholarship Federation member was involved in pageantry, tall flags, Spanish Club, and volleyball. Her schedule as a senior included honors English, critical thought, genetics, trigonometry, and consumer education.

I want to be a lawyer for a huge corporation and make the big bucks!" Becky Steiger, a senior, had mixed feelings of joy and fear about her senior year. "I'm happy that I get to start life, but I am scared of where it might lead me."

Not only did Becky participate in field hockey and soccer, she also attended such classes as critical thought, trigonometry, physiology, English and off-campus physical education.

Physical education teacher Lynne McCarthy has a special admiration for Becky. She respects her for her athletic ability and her involvement in sports. Becky hopes to attend the University of California at Santa Barbara.

In the future, I plan to become a successful advertising executive, have my own company, and travel to all corners of the world," said Olivia Morlacchi. Olivia, who was enrolled in critical thought, genetics, and psychology, and was also a member of the California Scholarship Federation, expressed bright hopes about the future.

"Being a senior is an unexplainable feeling," said Olivia. "You're filled with extreme excitement about the future, even though you're a little frightened of it." In Olivia's frightened future ... a U.C. campus dead ahead.

Christiana Smith plans to become a genetic counselor, researcher, or educator. She hopes to attend the University of California at Berkeley or Davis.

She was involved in the banner corps for one year, and cross-country for three. Christiana had a demanding schedule of honors English, calculus, critical thought and physics.

She had mixed feelings about being a senior. "It's great because it's almost over," she said. "It's also sad because I'll miss all of my friends."

A Work of Art

by Heather Rowell

Kelly is "always ready to accept a challenge and puts a lot of energy and thought into her art work. She knows how to challenge herself with increasingly more difficult work, which is why she is developing into such a fine artist," said Susan Lewis, the art teacher.

Kelly Clark took advance studio art, consumer education, geometry, government,

English, and tennis and badminton. Kelly is considering entering the Air Force or becoming a model. Kelly thought that being a senior was "boss" and wanted to get a job working with clothing after graduation.

Of the Ruling Class

by Heather Rowell

Valerie Edrozo hopes to be a teacher. "I would like to be a high school teacher in the area of English and psychology," said Valerie.

To achieve this goal, Valerie wants to go to Palomar College for two years, and then transfer to a four year college or university.

According to Valerie, she doesn't feel like a senior. "This year," said Valerie, "is going past too quickly. I hope that this year is my best year both socially and academically." Critical thought teacher Rip Manning said that Valerie is truly dedicated to the service of her class as senior class president and doesn't look at the "glory" she has attracted. Not only was Valerie senior class president, she was enrolled in critical thought, honors genetics, and trigonometry.

"My favorite class," said Brian Kohls, "is government because it is getting me prepared for law school." Brian would like to become either a corporate or criminal lawyer.

He plans to go to Palomar College for one or two years and then transfer to the University of California at San Diego for two years. Then he'll be off to the University of San Diego for law school.

Brian's classes this year were trigonometry, government, journalism, chemistry, weight training and Senior English. He was the president of SADD (Students Against Drunk Driving). He thought his senior year would be the best, even though he didn't want to leave his friends.

Roland Rick was happy to be a senior. In Roland's own words, he felt "stoked, beyond reality."

Among the classes Roland took were calculus, Senior English, critical thought, and off-campus physical education.

After graduating, Roland plans to take a very expensive trip and enjoy his last summer before he begins at the University of California at San Diego, where he plans to major in engineering. He hopes to make a lot of money after he graduates to support his expensive hobbies, which include water skiing, snow skiing, swimming, and flying.

"I don't think I have senioritis yet, but I am fully stoked to be a senior. It (senioritis) will probably hit me in a couple of months," said Christine Spiegel.

Christine, who has been involved in the California Scholarship Federation, the Spanish Club, and Key Club, wants to be an elementary school teacher. In order to reach this goal, she plans to attend the University of California at Santa Barbara for four or five years.

Christine has also been involved in field hockey and soccer. Her classes included Senior English, trigonometry/precalculus, civics, band, consumer education, and chemistry.

Law or Literature?

by Heather Rowell

Chemistry, honors English, critical thought, genetics, French II, and Algebra II — what a schedule! Julie Munk did quite well, even under such a heavy load.

"Being a senior is paradox," according to Julie "You feel excited to go out, (but) you don't want to go. I want to graduate, but I will miss many things about high school."

Teacher Rip Manning had a very positive opinion of Julie. "Ms. Munk,"

he said, "is one of the most mature and brilliant minds I have ever run into. Her explanations and views are well thought, considered, and incredibly just. She works hard to maximize the tremendous gift of intellect she possesses."

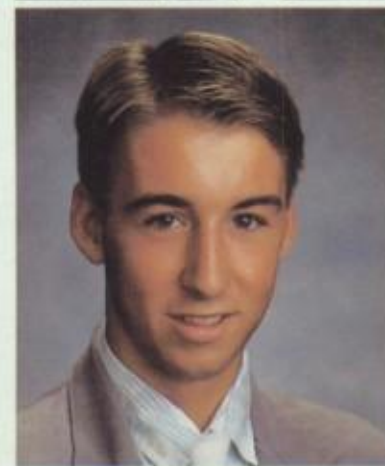

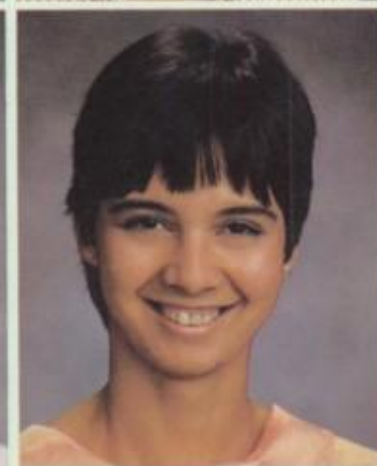

Julie would like to find a profession where she can use her years of education in a worthwhile way. She plans on attending UCSD and majoring in law or literature.

Rima Salman felt proud to be a senior. "It's a little scary, but fun," said Rima, a cheerleader for two years. She has been in French Club, California Scholarship Federation, and was the school board representative. Her classes included English 12 honors, government, genetics, calculus, and leadership class.

She plans to go to college and possibly get married. She hopes to attend the University of California at San Diego and study life sciences.

Type-Casting

by Heather Rowell

udy Lopez is one who is known for his ability to use computers. Besides completing typing I and II, he has been in JOBS/OJT and AOS.

Business teacher Sarann Goad said, "He is always willing to help; our system is more effective because of his efforts. He is also very honest and gets along well with other students."

In the future Rudy would like to be a computer operator. He loves being a senior, "because it means I can make my own decisions now."

A Sense of Loss

by Heather Rowell

Dana Glaser didn't feel much different about "seniorhood" than she did about her other years of high school. "However," she said, "I don't like the feeling of losing all my friends and being on my own."

Dana has been involved with the California Scholarship Federation for four years, Spanish Club for two years, and Key Club for one. In addition, Dana, an avid tennis player, has played for San Marcos High for three years. She wants to go to college, but isn't sure of which one. Because she enjoys helping people in need, Dana would like to become a genetic counselor. Dana has acquired the respect of many of her teachers and peers through her hard work and ability to handle a demanding schedule. Her classes this year were Senior English, critical thought, economics, and calculus. In addition, she was an aide for history teacher, John Vitulli

Senior Confusion

by Heather Rowell

on Webb felt confused about being a senior. "Three short years ago," he said, "I was just a carefree freshman." He felt that this year was filled with forms and other college-related worries.

However, in spite of his confusion, he seemed quite clear in his plans for the future. He wanted to attend Boston University or U.C. Berkeley and become a genetic engineer, after majoring in biology.

His past involvement in school will assist him in the future. He is a life member of the California Scholarship Federation, in addition to being a member of the Future Farmers of America for two years.

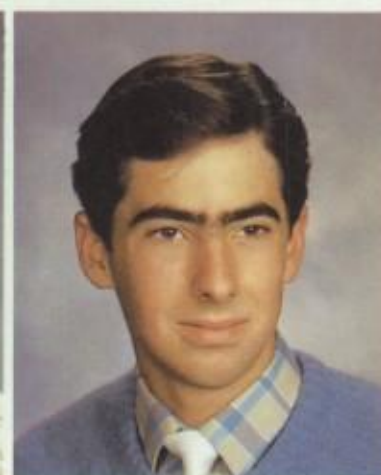

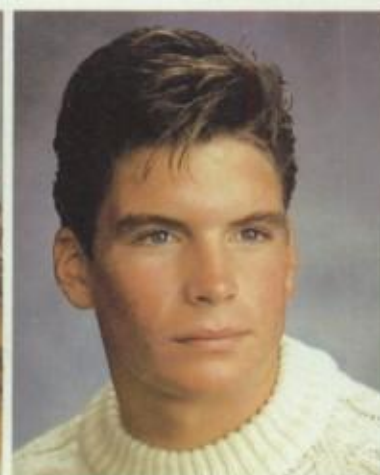

Ron is also athletic, having participated in junior varsity soccer for two years and cross-country for two years. English, animal science, critical thought, genetics, and French III and calculus were among his classes.

Backbone of the Kingdom

by Monica Fedder

The administrators worked very hard this year. All of them are enjoying their jobs and a few of them had a word or two to say about what they enjoy most about their job.

Said Principal Marv Glusac, "The kids I work with and being around young people is what I enjoy most about my job. The students have an innocence about them. I wouldn't be in education if I didn't like kids. Most of my work is positive, but our society doesn't value education enough. However, I like the school very much."

Assistant Principal Bob Harman's job is going well too. He enjoyed being the athletic director and watching fine athletes participate in sports. Says Harman, "As far as discipline goes, I enjoy watching students who have problems straighten out their lives, and go on to be successful in school."

Assistant Principal Susan Maki enjoys being able to work at SMHS with the students, good faculty, and in a nice campus atmosphere. She also enjoys working with Mr. Glusac and Mr. Harman. She also commented on the new drug counselor Jay Delany. "He was a good asset this year, he helped a lot of kids who wanted or needed help," said Maki.

There is no doubt that all of the administrative staff has worked very hard this year and has accomplished quite a bit. All of their work has been very helpful to the school, and without all of these hard workers, there would be no backbone for the school. Their work is definitely much appreciated.

New Innovations

by Monica Fedder

The librarians are finding that their workload is becoming easier now that they have the extra help from the new head librarian Linda Goodballet.

Mrs. Goodballet really enjoys San Marcos High School. She taught P.E. at a Junior High in West Virginia for eleven years before moving here. She is the first librarian in many years to have a teaching credential, and prefers being a librarian. "Everybody is so nice to me here," she said. She enjoys working with students and helps them to find books they will enjoy reading.

As far as the library's extended hours, they had an average turnout of twelve to sixteen students a night and found that more students showed up the nights that teachers were there to tutor.

Also, the librarians were busy updating the books in the library. The Administrators were pleased with the new reference collection.

Lou Cooper, one of the library assistants, said the most enjoyable aspect of her job was "being able to arrange the library."

Library assistant Pat Wagner's favorite part of her job was "giving hugs and helping students with their reference homework assignments — plus helping the staff with problems."

All in all, the librarians had a great year, working hard at their jobs and improving the library.

Planning Futures

by Monica Fedder

Another busy year for the counselors! With all of the new freshmen this year, the counselors didn't think they could get any busier than last year, but they did! They were also busy helping seniors plan their future goals.

Lois Richmond said approximately 20 percent of the seniors are going to four year colleges, while 40 percent will go to a community college such as Palomar.

Counselor Judy Ruzich said that when comparing students' attitudes over the years, more students today are aware of planning their futures.

The best part of Mrs. Ruzich's job this year was "working with the students and staff. I find the work I do challenging," she said.

This year the counselors got a new Apple computer. It helped out their workload tremendously. Also, the new aide, Donna Lomeli, was a big help to the counselors too. She was a replacement for Robin Odegard, who took leave to have her baby.

Overall, the counselors had a great year and were a great help for those students who just needed someone to talk to.

Grey and Blue for You

This year's secretaries worked hard for everyone on campus. Their jobs were full of sorting, typing, phone calls, papers, etc. The administrators couldn't run their jobs smoothly without them. They're true lifesavers when it comes to a helping hand on the days when the papers are piled sky high.

Carol Porzel, receptionist said, "I enjoy helping students, typing bulletins, and answering parents questions. It is rewarding to satisfy people's problems with solutions." Secretary Shelley Harbour commented, "SMHS is the greatest! It's fun to work with the staff and students — each day always brings something new to deal with."

Helpin' Hands

by Shasta Wyman

The aides at SMHS are extremely important to faculty and students alike. They take a great part in teaching and provide small group and one-on-one instructions. One example is the students that speak English as a second language. They teach and translate things for students. Reading teacher Janine Totta has four aides. Annie Perez has been with her for three years, Gloria Gierat, is new this year, Christina Bentley, is also new this year, and Mrs. Margaret Fox has been here three years as a volunteer. Ms. Totta said, "I wouldn't be able to do my job without helpers. There are too many needs from different kinds of students."

When asked why they chose this as a job they said that they like working with teenagers. Also, the Spanish and Mexican students are really nice.

They get their personal rewards when a student gets a better grade. "I feel so good when I see a student improving," said Annie Perez. She will be retiring with her husband this year, but she, just as the other aides, has received great personal satisfaction from her job.

Clean Team

by Shasta Wyman and Paula Kunderling

"Making San Marcos High School the best looking school in north county" is head custodian Mike Garcia's goal.

Garcia

and his crew of custodians pick up the trash on campus and do some maintenance, as well as keep the room clean. They helped install the portables and worked on keeping the rooms warm in cold weather and cool in hot weather.

The only problem Garcia can see is the matter of excess trash, especially after lunch. Garcia understands that a shortage of crew makes getting all the work done difficult.

"I enjoy working with the students and keeping the school looking good, inside and out," he said.

Cafeteria manager Dolores Gibbons says her job "isn't really hard — it's challenging." For the past four years she has planned the meals, ordered the food, cashiered and taken inventory.

She chose this job because she likes working around students and working with food. She also enjoys belonging to the school staff. The only thing she dislikes is getting up at 4 a.m. to be at school at 5:30.

"There aren't really any problems in this job except minor things that we solve," she said.

The cafeteria system has not changed much this year except that the staff is trying to give students more of a selection. Next year remodeling will be done and it will be more efficient, helping students to get their lunches more quickly.

Gibbons, who said she'll probably be a part of the staff "forever," said, "I like the system, but I'm glad it's improving."

Love In The Teachers' Lounge

by Heather Rowell and Monica Fedder

San Marcos High School doesn't have a matchmaking service, but Cupid has been at work. Stephen Drew, a science teacher, and Sandy Robinson, who teaches journalism and advises yearbook, became engaged to be married.

The happy couple went on their first date July 2, 1986, to see "Richard II" at the Old Globe Theatre. There must have been sparks, because they set their engagement in October of that same year. Mr. Drew recalls, "We were sitting on the couch at my house when I proposed to her." It was quite romantic, however. Ms. Robinson (soon to be Mrs. Stephen Drew) just blushes and embarrasses easily whenever the subject's brought up.

Ms. Robinson was bubbling over with information on the happy couples wedding arrangements which she has already started on. It will be an outdoor wedding and non-traditional. Ms. Robinson will be wearing a white tiered Renaissance cotton, off-the-shoulder dress, while Mr. Drew promises to wear swimfins . . . with a matching tux of course.

Suzanne Pippin congratulates the happy couple on their engagement. She was one of the first to find out the couple's engagement.

Sandy Robinson lectures to her English class while visions of her wedding day go dancing through her head. Ms. Robinson also teaches Journalism.

Steve Drew daydreams about his future bride in the midst of his class. Drew was also seen on John Vitulli's clock.

Holding at 3.9

by Beth Hatten

Becky Ekberg is one of San Marcos High School's devoted students. Her enthusiasm has shown over the years, as she participated on J.V. Cheer her sophomore year and Varsity Cheer for the past two years. This year has been Becky's most dedicated year on the squad. But Becky's rhythm doesn't stop here. She's very talented in music as well, having been in band for one and a half years as a flute player. Her past history in music includes playing the oboe, the violin, and having a natural talent for the piano. Becky has thought about pursuing a career in music, and would like to make that her minor in college.

As for Becky's academic record, she is equally qualified to hold her own. Having obtained a 3.9 GPA, Becky remembers how it was a challenge. Classes such as calculus, critical thought, honors genetics and honors English have kept her busy these past years. As for a career, having once had such goals as being the first woman astronaut on the moon, Becky felt it best to change this goal, and since she feels that the human body is fascinating, she'll probably major in a biological science, such as genetics.

When Becky has spare time, she has several ways to spend it. "Biking and swimming are a couple of sports I enjoy when I'm in an energetic mood. Singing and acting are ways I relieve my tension, and reading is my relaxing pastime," says Becky. Her all-time favorite thing to do is to watch the sunset while walking along the beach.

Becky Ekberg has many high ambitions. With all she's accomplished in her high school years, she's sure to exceed in her career and her future.

Attention Cadet Lynch!

by Beth Hatten

Ever wonder what it takes to get into the United States Air Force Academy? Well, senior Jim Lynch has what it takes. Congressman Ron Packard chose Jim to be one of ten students in North County to be nominated to the U.S.A.F.A.

After such a nomination, one has to then be accepted by the academy. They look at one's class ranking and GPA, and Jim held a 4.0. About 1,100 students nationwide will be accepted to the academy as freshmen, and Jim was the first person in San Diego County to be accepted there. Being notified in January of his acceptance excited him, as most people are accepted in March through May.

But the hard part for Jim is yet to come. Hardly 13 days after graduation, he'll be leaving for six weeks of basic training. Then school starts in early August. There, Cadet Lynch will rise at 5:30 in the morning to prepare for a long day. His day will include chores, breakfast, classes from 8-3, sports from 3-6, dinner, and study time from 8-11.

Jim is to salute every upperclassman, do chores, kitchen work and more. This will be a stressful and challenging time for him and others to endure, but they are treated this way for a purpose — to be carefully molded and created into the best that they can be.

The U.S.A.F.A. does allow breaks. The cadets are given two monthly passes that allow them to leave the academy grounds, one is good for a weekend, and the other for a day. They are also given leave over holidays like Christmas.

Even though he will experience many new things at the academy, he has a positive attitude. Jim Lynch is strong-minded and determined. "I know I can make it!" he said. And with this attitude, he will.

Move Over Jan!

by Erik Nielsen and Monica Fedder

Juggling may seem almost impossible to us mere mortals, but senior Michelle Williams seems to be good at it. She's juggling a job, a pretty full schedule and, last but certainly not least, soccer after school. How does she do it? "I don't go half-way on anything," she says.

She certainly doesn't. She's been playing the clarinet for four years and soccer as well. ("I live soccer!") Although she's only in Spanish II this year, Michelle plans to continue her bilingual education in college. Speaking of college, Michelle plans on attending UCSD after graduation. Her career goal is to become a genetics counselor, or a genetics teacher here at SMHS. Her favorite teacher is Jan Mongoven. "He's an inspiration to me!" claims Michelle.

Currently Michelle works at Alpha Beta. When she's not working she enjoys being with friends and family and watching her little brothers' baseball and soccer games. Her favorite pastime is camping at the beach with her family.

Michelle has accomplished much throughout her high school years. Her advice to students: "Stick to it!"

Living the Life of a Senior

by: Monica Fedder

A lot of work goes into being a senior. It all starts at the beginning of the year.

Seniors all of a sudden realize that there is no one to follow any more, no one to look up to. They realize that the tables are turned and that they are the ones that the freshman, sophomore, and junior class will be looking up to.

The first semester for seniors is pretty normal. They go through the same moods basically that all of the rest of the classes do, but with a spark of hope knowing that this will be their last year of high school.

As the first semester nears an end, seniors can feel the anticipation of the end of the year drawing to a close.

With the end of the first semester come senior assemblies telling about upcoming senior events; for instance, the ordering of senior T-shirts and caps and gowns. The color and style of the T-shirts are chosen by a majority vote, in which seniors only are allowed to vote.

The cap and gown colors are also voted on by seniors with the girls wearing one color, and the guys another.

Meanwhile the planning of the graduating ceremony continues as seniors plan for the senior breakfast — which this year was held at King's Table in Escondido. Grad night at Disneyland is also being busily planned. Seniors wait with anticipation until the formal graduating ceremony is officially over, then it's time to clean up, hop on the bus, and have an exciting night at Disneyland.

With all of this hustle and bustle that goes along with being a senior, Prom night is just another added attraction that keeps seniors even busier. That worry about finding just the right dress for the girls, and the guys, well, the guys have to worry about who to ask.

All in all, there certainly is no doubt, a lot of business in being a senior. So for all of those underclassmen out there who will be experiencing senioritis sometime in the near future, just a few words of advice from someone who has been through it . . . Good Luck and Have Fun!

Sincerely,
A senior who lived through it!

Determined Junior

by Dierdre Johnston

Wouldn't most high school students love to be graduating early?

Jesus Gutierrez is that student. A junior, he is graduating this June, but it didn't come without a lot of hard work and determination.

"I wanted to prove to myself that I could do it," said Jesus. He was held back in kindergarten and decided when he got to high school that he wanted to graduate with his class.

"I had to study almost all the time," he said. His decision to try for an early graduation prevented him from doing many things other high school students enjoy.

"I wanted to play football but I didn't have time," he continued. He couldn't play other sports and often couldn't go out with his friends.

To get the credits necessary to graduate, he had to take classes during the summer and night school at Palomar.

"It was worth it, though," he said, "because I want to get on with life and I can't wait to graduate."

Shortly after graduation, Jesus plans to go to college at Devry Institute, in Los Angeles. He wants to be an electronic engineer.

As for other students graduating, Jesus said, "It's an individual decision. If they want to get on with their lives, I recommend it."

Our Congratulations to the Seniors, Class of 1987! Good luck as you now become the new generation of working class.

The Closing Ceremonies

Female Knight of the Year

Mary Brooks

The 86-87 Senior Class was proud to know that Mary Brooks was their "Knight of the Year." She completed her position as ASB secretary with thoroughness and handled many numerous, thankless jobs that were done behind the scenes. Mary definitely earned the RYLA, the Rotary Youth Leadership Award, for her ability to take charge and get things completed. Mary showed great school spirit by participating on the Short Flags Team for two years. She was also athletically involved as she played on JV softball, track, and her favorite sport, basketball where she was awarded the "Most Inspirational Player." For her future, Mary would like to work with public relations.

anny Karrer has excelled in many areas during his high school career. He has played the trumpet in the San Marcos High School Band and received the honor of outstanding bandsman in his freshman and sophomore years. He has been involved in both football and track and was named best field athlete in track. Danny, who enjoys surfing and is an avid runner, was voted junior class president, and junior homecoming prince. He holds a 3.0 GPA. Health and safety teacher Don Wyatt said, "Danny is a talented and exceptional student."

he 87-88 ASB officers began their terms in February. President Jeff Cranney, vice-president Matt Cooper, secretary Lisa Contreras, and treasurer Bill Brooks have many goals for SMHS. As president, Jeff has just begun making changes that will affect both the student body this year and next. Jeff is also concerned about getting the leadership class to take on more responsibility with less people. More jobs will be assigned to each person. A new addition to ASB is their computer, which they use to make things run more smoothly.

For his second year in office, Matt Cooper again holds the position of vice-president. He runs the class rep meetings with the sense of leadership his previous experience has taught him. Overall, he is excited about the upcoming year. "Jeff Cranney and I plan to make the 1987 ASB the best ever," he said.

Lisa Contreras wanted to get involved, so she ran for secretary. Lisa feels that she has met many people that encouraged her and she enjoys making new friends. She is highly confident, along with the other officers, that this upcoming year will be the best ever for SMHS.

Bill Brooks has been busy since he became ASB treasurer in February. Twice daily he would go to Mrs. Schonerman's office to sign checks that needed to be signed. This helped to keep the finances well-documented. He feels that his year using the computer and helping to organize everything has prepared him for this position and any future ones he may hold.

1. Leading in Style and enthusiasm are Susana Navarro and Jeff Cranney. This is Susana's first year on Roundtable. 2. Forward ho! Was Les Samenow's motto in his first year as ASB advisor. He and Barbara Dolan shared responsibilities. 3. Brooking no competition, Bill Brooks totals up the accounts. He edged out both Steve Chavez and Becky Miranda for the position of treasurer. 4. Hard at work is Jeff Cranney. He moved up from treasurer to president. 5. Betty Boop revisited is Susana Navarro.

Tomorrow's Leaders Today's Knights

The ASB convention in January was a success thanks to ASB. Everyone participated by individually taking care of a certain job and getting it done. New ideas were used in the theme of the convention, like the cement poles to identify classes.

Added to liven things up this day in the gym was entertainment. There were skits, songs, and videos to motivate the audience. However, this wasn't the main purpose of the convention. It was to elect new ASB officers in the way that our country's political conventions are run.

After the day of voting, the results were known. The new ASB officers are: Jeff Cranney, president; Matt Cooper, vice president; Lisa Contreras, secretary; and Bill Brooks, treasurer. They all hope that the upcoming year is the best ever.

1. The Latest Scoop — Scott Masters gets the votes from Julianne Billings. Each representative got the chance to place his vote. 2. "Give me a J," asked Jill Dougherty. She was competing for the secretary position. 3. Rising to the occasion was Becky Miranda. She lost to Steve Chavez for the treasurer nomination.

1. Little Chicago? No, the SMHS ASB nominating convention Ray Neis and Michelle Brubeck were delegates from Chicago. 2. Super John to the rescue? No, Matt Cooper walked away with the position. 3. The Little People were well represented by Rick Ebert. Rick had the stomach to face the challenge of running for president.

Mark Nichols served as the school's ASB president in the 1986-87 school year. Having been elected vice president as a freshman, Mark was definitely making plans on moving up the ladder. Even after a busy year of working on Homecoming, the ASB convention, pep assemblies and special assemblies, and participatin on the S.I.P. (Site Improvement Committee) for the campus, Mark is still going strong. In being a leader and relating with his peer groups, he hopes it will help prepare him for a career in business or engineering.

This was the first year of office for vice president Matt Cooper. As vice president, Matt held the responsibility of helping organize the class representative meetings. He felt that these ASB meeting should be taken seriously, and disciplinary actions should be taken in order to keep them under control. Working with the ASB convention is another job of the vice president. Matt attended schools like Mt. Carmel, Vista, and Fallbrook to get ideas for this convention.

For Mary Brooks, her senior year was busy as she was ASB secretary. Mary recorded the minutes of all meetings. The master calendar in the teachers' lounge was also Mary's responsibility, as she had to put all activities on it. Overall, she had a good year. Mostly, in her year of office, Mary liked working with the student body. This helped prepare her for a future, one that will deal with public relations.

Treasurer Jeff Cranney helped by signing checks to pay for the school's expenses. Those checks paid for referees, umpires, and clubs that are growing and need funding. Making sure the school's checkbook balanced was a big responsibility, and Jeff kept it balanced. The Video Yearbook was a great new addition to the school. "I put a lot of hard work into it and I feel it's great," said Jeff.

the five days students and staff both dressed up and had fun. The climax of the week was Homecoming. At halftime during the game Scott Masters and Tracey O'Rourke were chosen king and queen.

The new year brought with it basketball season and senior blues. Twelfth graders fit college, scholarship, and financial worksheets into their busy schedules of homework and senioritis.

Juniors and sophomores filled their days working on the ASB convention. A lucky few even got to work for election as ASB officers. They included Jeff Cranney, president; Matt Cooper, vice-president; Bill Brooks, treasurer; and Lisa Contreras, secretary.

The end of the year saw the annual air band competition. Students lip-synced to their favorite songs as academic bowl members gave lip service to trivia questions.

1. The Bobsy Twins? No it's Steve Neal and Jim Jennings of Bob Marly. 2. Shelly Anguano fakes beautiful music. Her group, Five Star, took first place. 3. Dancing Queens, John Travolta and date harmonized with the Bee Gees. 4. The Brass Section struts its stuff. Jeff Cranny and Danny Karrer can do this for real. 5. Second place winners, The B-52's, contemplate how to split their check.

Out of the Mouths Of Babes

As by Maria Froehle
s in previous years, the Air Band assembly was one of the best attended and most enjoyed assemblies of the year.

It started with The BeeGee's (Keith Bingham, Steve Dapkus, Mike Isabell) and John Travolta (Carlos Osuna). Five Star, the first place winners of $100 included Shelly Angiano, Bobby Miranda, Kim Morrison, Laura Parra and Geoff Rochester dancing to the song "If I Say Yes." Their three weeks of practice paid off when the judges, one from radio station KKOS, said yes.

Following the stars were Bob Marley. Under grease paint the singers were hard to identify, but the senior t-shirt in which Bob also made an appearance was evident. The transition from hard rock to rhythm was made as the assembly moved on to Ready For The World. Leading the pack was Vaughn Webb, whose dancing feet couldn't quite pull off an award.

Slapstick came next as Becky Steiger and Tracey Burton breathed life into the Blues Brothers' classic, Soul Man. Jeff Cranney, Danny Karrer, Steve Chavez, and Joe Ward were back-up.

The audience seemed to think that the best was saved for last as the B-52's took the second place spot with Lobster Rock. Steve Tidd, Scott Masters and Andrea St. Clair were the most seen, but were supported by dozens of extras including Gina Robinson as the forgotten Mermaid. Their prize of $50 could have gone to pay for props that kept falling down during the performance. Rick Ebert took a stint as MC, while trying to earn his wings as a stand up comedian.

I Could Have Danced All Night^T

San Marcos High School's 1987 prom was held at the NCO club on Camp Pendleton. The theme was "Tonight's the Knight" with a color scheme of dark blue, light blue, pearl white and silver. This year's entertainment was presented by the Incidentals and Sunset Mobile Music.

Much time and effort was devoted to the preparation of this year's prom. Some fund raisers that took place to allow the prom to happen included the Homecoming Dance, the Band Review at San Diego State, the candy sales. Also, many prom committee meetings, meetings with the photographers, the choosing of key chains, glasses and invitations, and decisions about decorations were necessary. The prom committee found it was definitely no easy task.

"I enjoyed very much putting the prom together and I thank all of the prom committee members greatly," said the junior class president. I hope that everyone had a super time."

I've been called many things in my three years as editor of the Talisman, but the one comment that has stuck with me is Mr. Franklin's observation that "I walk with a purpose." I hope that walk is not the only purposeful thing I've done. I sincerely hope that the staffs who follow this year's will have as much fun as we did, and I hope the next editor meets as many wonderful people during his/her "rule" as I did.

Yearbook wasn't all fun. In fact it wasn't even a lot of fun. Fun had to be found between deadlines and egos. I have some wonderful memories to take with me and I hope that I've left a few good ones behind. I readily admit that I am tired of yearbook. I am tired of every day being a pressure cooker and every hour being devoted to yearbook. (I picked my college because it didn't have a yearbook!) However, I know as soon as this page is on the way to the printer I will regret this and want to do it all over again. I can't, so I have to say goodbye. Goodbye to the Talisman, goodbye to my staff, goodbye to SMHS.

My senior will? I leave lots of love, support and encouragement to Susana Navarro, David Eakin and Shauna McGee. Mr. Mongo, Ms. Garrett, Mr. Gnibus, Mr. Bernal, Mr. Vitulli and all the teachers I ever had I say, "Thank You!" Mikee, thanks for being a wonderful photographer and person. Kathy: Hang Tough in your life. Kimberly: I'm sorry, are you? Kenji: "Friends and ... ?" Mrs. Quack: THANK YOU and never forget your little sis. Last, but not least, thank you Mrs. Robinson for putting up with me and letting me do it my way. Ha!

MARIA'S MOTTO

Let me be a little kinder,
Let me be a little blinder
To the faults of those about me —
Let me praise a little more;
Let me be when I am weary,
Just a little bit more cheery,
Let me serve a little better
Those that I am striving for.

Let me be a little braver
When temptation bids me waver,
Let me strive a little harder
To be all that I should be;
Let me be a little meeker
With a brother who is weaker,
Let me think more of my neighbor
And a little less of me.

How does a person with only a few weeks of beginning photography classes end up being head photographer for the school annual three years later? Well, it's not easy. First you have to put up with the tyrant head photographers before you. Mine was Steve Herman. I still think he is truly evil.

A second step of the journey is to make as many people happy as often as possible. Get everything done and make the editors feel as though you are doing them a favor.

Third, learn to beg. This comes in handy when favors are required from teachers. I think Mr. Mongoven would be the most knowledgeable of my methods, such as the time when he let me out of class to fix my car before I even owned one.

Last, say thank you often. Through the years many people have heard me say this, but there are a few people who should be included in my final thank you: Jesus Gutierrez, one of the best photographers I've met in a long time; Alex Calejari, the most improved on the staff; Scott Kitchens, Chris Jones, Larry Delaney, and others who worked very hard. Good luck to you guys! You'll need it, for you are the Paparazzi. — Mike Kreutz
